OFFICIAL MEDIA RELEASE
Monday 1st May 2017

Good Design Australia announced the 2017 Good Design Selections today marking the countdown to Australia's most prestigious awards for design and innovation on June 8th 2017.

After an extensive evaluation process involving more than 35 Australian and international design experts, the Jury have finalised their results and awarded only the best entries to receive the Good Design® Selection.

Rhodes Peninsula Open Space Master Plan was one of only 244 entries to receive the 2017 Good Design® Selection and is now in the running to receive the coveted Australian Good Design Award, which will be announced at the Good Design Awards Ceremony on June 8 at the Overseas Passenger Terminal (OPT) in Sydney.

On receiving the Good Design® Selection for Rhodes Peninsula Open Space Master Plan, the Jury commented: "A very impressive master plan that provides an integrated network of recreation and cultural facilities to meet complex community needs in a dense new urban precinct. The Jury commends this project and the vision it creates for diversity and community rec"

The Jury set the bar very high this year with only the very best submissions receiving this level of recognition.

Australia's Good Design Awards date back to the 1950's and have an enviable record of unearthing globally recognised talent and products.

Last year, the Flow Hive, an innovative beekeeping device that has taken the world by storm took out the prestigious Good Design Award of the Year, the highest design honour in the country.

The 2017 Good Design Awards Ceremony and Festival will coincide with Vivid Sydney, now the world's largest festival of light, music and ideas.

Winners will be celebrated at the black tie Awards Ceremony in Sydney, where guests will be invited to the exclusive opening of the 2017 Good Design Showcase, which will feature the winners of this year's Awards.

"The Australian Good Design Awards attracted innovative entries from all corners of the world and the standard of submissions this year has really been incredible," said Dr Brandon Gien, CEO of Good Design Australia and Chair of the Good Design Awards program.

"This is one of the few design award programs in the world where design and innovation are celebrated so broadly. This year's Good Design® Selections represent excellence in design across the widest spectrum of design including Product Design, Service Design, Architectural Design, Design Strategy, Digital and Communication Design and Social Innovation," Dr. Gien commented.

"Good design is about making our lives better, safer and happier. It extends to everything around us – from the products we use in our daily lives and the services we interact with to the buildings we live and work in – they can all be improved through better design. That's what lies at the heart of these Awards".
