Matthew V. Rusch

Matt Rusch is a litigator with more than 20 years of experience in a wide range of litigated federal and state matters, including bankruptcy and creditors' rights, insurance matters, employment law, professional negligence defense, commercial litigation, and general civil litigation. He has been with the firm since 2004. Matt gained extensive trial experience while serving on active duty with the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's Corps from 1999-2004, trying challenging court-martial cases at Fort Lewis, Washington, and serving as a Special Assistant U.S. Attorney at Fort Riley, Kansas. His clients include banks; small lenders and other creditors; insurance companies; employers of all sizes; and individuals. He regularly helps clients with foreclosures, repossessions, and replevins.

Matt has been honored to serve in the United States military for more than 20 years. He is a veteran of Operation Iraqi Freedom, serving as legal advisor for an Army medical brigade in Iraq. Since 2004, he has served in the United States Army Reserve and has worked in the areas of Operational Law, Administrative Law, and Military Justice. He currently holds the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Over the past several years, Matt has been a frequent invited speaker to discuss various topics related to civil litigation and professional negligence at continuing education programs.
