

Transart Triennale 2016 Announces Its Program in Berlin

Transart Triennale 2016—titled The Imperceptible Self— will take place at Uferstudios in Berlin from August 5–7, 2016. As artists and creatives become more and more nomadic, the Transart Triennale 2016 will engage artistic response and interpretation to questions of how we live together in a global community. Trans and inter-cultural relationships and actions now mark our lives on many levels and collective work in spaces in between increasingly influences how we see ourselves and others. How can we define identity notions of self in these evolving sites and states of transformation? How do we want to live now and in the future? Initiating a three-year period of investigation and interpretation, artists and researchers will follow these and other questions through exhibitions, performances, publications, screenings, workshops, seminars and a one-day symposium.

Projects and outcomes of this year's Transart Triennale will be documented in texts and artistic contributions to be published in the third edition of ELSE – The Journal of International Art, Literature, Theory and Creative Media (www.elsejournal.org).

Transart Institute started its utopian program out of a recognition that graduate work for artists required a different model. Founded—and still run by artists—Transart offers a full-time international Creative Practice Master of Fine Arts degree (MFA) and a PhD program for international artists accredited by Plymouth University in the United Kingdom. Also, offered is a non-degree certificate program for working artists at Transart Berlin Summer Academy.

Self motivated students who live and work independently across the globe participate in the low-residency MFA and Phd programs consisting of intensive summer residencies of international exchange currently in Berlin for summer workshops, seminars, guest lectures and presentations, performances and exhibitions, and winter intensives in New York City.

In a spirit of nomadic wandering Transart began in Vienna in 2003 and continued on in Los Angeles. Being truly international the Transart Institute has now landed in Berlin for the first time and this year the Transart Triennale will be among its first events.
