

CELEBRATING YOUNG PEOPLE AWARDS

Powered by Million Minutes

23 NOVEMBER 2017
LONDON

I'm very glad to pay my personal salute to young people. Don't ever let go of these qualities: your generosity, your compassion, and your capacity for forgiveness. Those are the things that really make human living worthwhile. And you've got them you've expressed them. You're deepening your understanding of those things in action. Thank you for displaying them in the way that you do.

HE Cardinal Vincent Nichols
Archbishop of Westminster, speaking at the 2015
Awards

The Celebrating Young People Awards honour the achievements of those truly remarkable young people who make our communities and our world a better place.

Nominated by friends and family, teachers and clergy, award recipients are drawn from throughout England and Wales and reflect achievements in every area of social action.

Their achievements will be an inspiration for us all. They will show us all how ordinary young people can do the most extraordinary things. Last year recipients included young carers, a class of climate change bloggers, an eighteen year old bringing her community together, a student challenging bullying and a volunteer sports coach.

Our award recipients come from public nominations, and are whittled down to a shortlist in each category. Our judging panels, made up of celebrated figures, choose those who will be publicly honoured at a glittering ceremony in central London in the Autumn.

Nominees can be aged 11 to 25, from anywhere in England and Wales, and they should be doing something extraordinary. The awards are run by Million Minutes, in partnership with St Mary's University, Twickenham.

Awards

THE JIMMY MIZEN AWARD

Promoting solidarity and peace: To recognise young people who have shown a firm and persevering commitment to the common good or peacemaking.

THE CARDINAL HUME AWARD

Living out the option for the poor: To recognise young people who helped others turn lives around.

THE JOSEPH CARDIJN AWARD

Protecting the dignity of workers: To recognise young people who have stood up for the rights of workers, helped people into work, or shown leadership among their colleagues.

THE DOROTHY DAY AWARD

Fostering community and participation: To recognise young people who have engaged with those around them, making their community a better place for all.

THE BARBARA WARD AWARD

Caring for the environment: To recognise young people who have conserved, enhanced or protected creation.

THE ST JOSEPHINE BAKHITA AWARD

Celebrating human dignity: To recognise young people who have enabled others to live a life of dignity

Young people demand change. They wonder how anyone can claim to be building a better future without thinking of the environmental crisis and the sufferings of the excluded.

THE POPE FRANCIS AWARD

The Pope Francis Award will be selected from all the nominations and presented by Archbishop Malcolm.

THE CYMFED AWARD

Inspiring youth leader: To recognise a truly inspiring adult youth worker or youth minister. Can be a volunteer worker/minister working in any setting.

"We are so happy that Jimmy's name will be used for one of these awards, inspiring peace in the lives of young people"

It is a delight to be associated with [these] awards... where young people are celebrated for their commitment to community engagement, to building up social cohesion and for showing solidarity. It truly is inspirational and an example to those of us who are older.

QUICK GUIDE TO CATHOLIC SOCIAL TEACHING

Catholic social teaching lies at the heart of the Celebrating Young People Awards. The awards will celebrate young people across England and Wales who are putting these principles into practice.

The dignity and equality of each human person: Every human being is lovingly and beautifully made in God's image and likeness.

The call to participation and community: Human beings exist in relation to one another. All of us are called to participate, to join in, to work for the common good of all.

A preferential option for the poor: Caring for those living in poverty, supporting their voice to be heard and enabling them to play a full, active role in society.

The dignity and rights of workers:

The right to work, to have a job, to earn money and so support your family are all connected to the dignity of each individual.

Solidarity among peoples and the promotion of peace:

We are called to live honestly with one another, working together in love for the good of all. This is what will lead to true peace.

Care for the earth:

God created the earth. Often, the way we treat creation leads to the harm both of it, and of those living on it. We need to treat the earth with respect.

'You are inspiring other young people, but you are also inspiring older people like me, sometimes people say 'the youth of today' and shake their heads. But actually, the youth of today are wonderful. It's quite extraordinary the energy and love that you have all put into your action and what you have given to your local communities.'

Award Recipients - The first six awards for young people will each have a short list and several recipients chosen by separate judging panels. These panels will also nominate individuals or groups for the Pope Francis Award to be presented by Archbishop Malcolm. A panel will select the recipient for the CYMFed Youth Leader Award.

Award recipients will be offered the opportunity to develop their own ideas of how to live Catholic Social teaching, with the chance for training, resources and ongoing mentoring from youth and social action organisations from within the Catholic community.
