Intersectional Resource List

The human abuse of animal creatures is deeply tied to other issues of oppression. CreatureKind advocates an approach to addressing farmed animal welfare that attends to the interlocking realities of modern food production and the fight for food justice. The following list of resources is not meant to be a comprehensive guide. These are examples of work that takes a multi-faceted approach to a broad range of food and animal issues.

Books and Book Chapters

- Ko, Aph and Syl Ko. Aphro-Ism: Essays on Pop Culture, Feminism, and Black Veganism from Two Sisters. Brooklyn: Lantern Books, 2017. The authors offer groundbreaking analysis of the compartmentalized nature of contemporary social movements, present new ways of understanding interconnected oppressions, and offer conceptual ways of moving forward expressive of Afropurism and black veganism.

- Rowe, Martin. The Elephants in the Room. Brooklyn: Lantern Books, 2013. The Elephants in the Room surveys a number of prejudices that many of us who are fortunate to be born with the privileges attached to our skin color, sex, and access to resources don't like to deal with: race, misogyny, and the legacy of empire.

- White, Monica. Freedom Farmers: Agricultural Resistance and the Black Freedom Movement. North Carolina: The University of North Carolina Press, 2018. “This book expands the historical narrative of the black freedom struggle to embrace the work, roles, and contributions of southern black farmers and the organizations they formed...this book reveals agriculture as a site of resistance and provides a historical foundation that adds meaning and context to current conversations around the resurgence of food justice/sovereignty movements in urban spaces.”

- Woodley, Randy. Shalom and the Community of Creation: An Indigenous Vision. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 2012. An exploration of the Native American “Harmony Way,” a concept that closely parallels biblical shalom, with the aim of reconciliation between Euro-Westerners and indigenous peoples, a new connectedness with the Creator and creation, an end to imperial warfare, the ability to live in the moment, justice, restoration, and a more biblically authentic spirituality.

Articles

Digital

- Food Empowerment Project: seeks to create a more just and sustainable world by recognizing the power of one’s food choices. We encourage healthy food choices that reflect a more compassionate society by spotlighting the abuse of animals on farms, the depletion of natural resources, unfair working conditions for produce workers, and the unavailability of healthy foods in low-income areas.

- A Well Fed World: hunger relief and animal protection organization working to alleviate both the suffering of people hungry from lack of food, and the suffering of animals used and abused for food.

- Black Vegans Rock: highlights influential Black vegans and organizations working to dismantle the stereotype that veganism is a “white person’s” thing.

- Striving with Systems: intersectional commentary, interviews, media, and other resources.

- Civil Eats: daily news source that aims to shift the conversation around sustainable agriculture in an effort to build economically and socially just communities.

- Young Farmers Podcast: National Young Farmers Coalition, coming up with innovating and dignified solutions to solving hunger in communities of color.
Films

- The Dark Side of Chocolate: A documentary on the exploitation and slavery of African children to harvest chocolate.
- Rape in the Fields: A Frontline and Univision documentary on the plight of migrant women working in the fields and packing plants.
- The Harvest (La Cosecha): This documentary follows three kids who struggle to dream while harvesting the food we eat, in 12-14 hour shifts.
- Eating Animals: Explores modern factory farming through a variety of lenses, including from the perspective of a poor, rural chicken farmer.