Your Input Needed for Open Source Hardware Certification

Today the Open Source Hardware Association (OSHWA) is kicking off the process to create an Open Source Hardware Certification. In addition to all of the amazing things that will happen at this year's Open Hardware Summit, our goal is to be able to roll out the first version of the Open Source Hardware certification this fall. In order to be able to do that, we need your input now. You can find all about the certification and the process here, but the rest of this post will give you a quick overview of what you need to know:

Open Source Hardware Certification Version 1

This is version 1 of an official certification for open source hardware housed in the Open Source Hardware Association. It outlines the purpose and goals of such a certification, and establishes the mechanisms for the operation of the certification process itself.

OSHWA Open Source Hardware Certification Form

This form is designed to guide you through the certification license agreement. Note that THIS GUIDE IS NOT A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE LICENSE AGREEMENT ITSELF. When you sign up for certification you are agreeing to be bound by the license agreement, which you should read and is available at <https://sites.google.com/site/oshwatest/home/license-agreement>. While this checklist covers many of the elements in the license agreement, you should not rely on it to cover all aspects of the license agreement in depth. Any discrepancies between this form and the license agreement will be resolved in favor of the license agreement.
