Overview

Welcome to your Entrepreneurial Development plan, the heart of your self-employment + creative modeling process.

Regardless of your objectives or timeline, your development plan contains the four components we use to guide us on the journey to successfully achieving your goals. These are:

1. Client Profile
2. Objectives
3. Methods
4. Progress

Entrepreneurial Development plans are designed to prepare you for the unique challenges facing an aspiring entrepreneur, consultant, or coach. When paired with an Add-On Development Program, plans and ongoing coaching are focused on a specific domain or dimension.

- Evaluate/Visualize: When we set an objective, we should first imagine ourselves in that state. This is a constant task and the mental imagery should be updated regularly. Start with a 2 minute visualization task and record your findings in the Evaluation box.
- Analyze/Research: The critical thinking section focuses on the personal and environment dynamics an individual should be aware of regarding their selected objective. This task should be thorough, but brief, as analysis paralysis can quickly take hold.
- Action: The longest and most frequently used section. Actions should be prioritized over Analysis. In the Action phase, the idea is to constantly generate momentum through efforts contributes to achieving one's desired objective.
- Synthesize Also known as Feedback, the Synthesis section takes the results of the Action and compares against the Evaluation + Analysis stages.
- Resources -/+: In order to accomplish objectives, appropriate resources must be identified. "+" indicates those resources already in possession or easy access and "-" indicates resources not yet possessed or difficult to access. Resources include knowledge, credentials, capital, and relationships, among others.
