Dear Friends,

Homelessness and a severe lack of affordable housing are two major crises facing our nation. It has been estimated that nearly three million persons will experience homelessness within the year. Washtenaw County is not exempt from this epidemic. Data collected in 2004 revealed that 2,756 persons in Washtenaw County alone experienced homelessness within the year. Twenty-six percent of those people were in families, which means many were children.

We cannot and will not allow homelessness to continue and so in response to the increasing needs of the community, providers of services to the homeless in Washtenaw County formed a coalition. This collaboration, the Washtenaw Housing Alliance (WHA), began in 1998 with its main function to combine efforts of multiple entities to best serve persons experiencing homelessness in the county.

You are aware, I am sure, that in the past several years, the WHA has accomplished a number of things. Interfaith Hospitality Network was able to renovate its family shelter in March of 2001. Prior to the renovation, local churches provided space for families on a weekly rotating schedule. The WHA also ran a capital campaign to generate funds for the construction of a new homeless shelter. In November of 2003, the four-story Robert J. Delonis Center was erected in downtown Ann Arbor. Over sixty programs are held at the center under the governance of the Shelter Association of Washtenaw County. Food Gatherers and its diligent volunteers prepare and serve three meals each day.

The most ambitious effort of the WHA has been the creation of A Home for Everyone: A Blueprint to End Homelessness in Washtenaw County. The implementation of this ten-year plan required the WHA to expand its staff. I am proud to announce the hiring of Mitch Steils who now serves as the executive director of the Washtenaw Housing Alliance and his administrative assistant Becky Stirling. Diane Davidson acts as the development director and numerous interns from the University of Michigan assist with the efforts of the Alliance.

Without the generosity and continuing support of the community of Washtenaw County, the WHA would be hard pressed to reach its goal of ending homelessness. Such an illustrious goal requires the courageous participation of leaders from all sectors including government, corporate, private, financial, religious, and non-profits. I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their contributions of time, talent and support as well as their commitment to a shared mission.

Sincerely,

Richard Soble
Board President
Washtenaw Housing Alliance
Our community has demonstrated a heartfelt commitment to successfully end homelessness. The idea of working collaboratively with a cross section of the community on this goal is nothing less than inspiring. The question is, "How do we define success?"

Over the past year the Housing Alliance has witnessed evidence of success in a variety of ways. On September 21, 2004, we came together to participate in a forum which launched the Blueprint to End Homelessness. Over 350 people attended this event and demonstrated their support of what we are attempting to do.

There have been 17 community based workgroups created, each focusing on one piece of the overall Blueprint. Group members have come from all sectors of our community, including housing agencies, service providers, interested community members, visionaries, academic leaders, government officials, business leaders, and more. The common thread binding us together has been the shared desire to end homelessness in our community. One thing has become clear: ending homelessness will not occur as the result of one overarching achievement. Rather, it will be the culmination of a series of many smaller successes from within each workgroup.

We’ve worked toward establishing a centralized prevention and response strategy for those at risk of losing housing (workgroups #1 and #2). A very complex mapping of our existing system of services is nearing completion. In 2006, we anticipate identifying where the biggest areas of need are, and the development of a plan that will “plug those gaps”.

WHA has continued to successfully raise much needed funding to help pay for essential supportive services in the community. These services are designed to meet the unique needs of formerly homeless tenants, with the goal of helping them to successfully enjoy a permanent and affordable home, following a “Housing First” model. For some, this may be the first time in many years that they have not had to worry about where they will sleep at night.

It was a day for making history when the very first session of the 15th District Court’s Homeless Outreach Court takes place in the fall of 2005. This innovative and forward thinking initiative is part of workgroup #6, focusing on those who suffer from addictions. The concept of the court is to reach out to individuals in the legal system who are prepared to take the next steps along the continuum that moves them out of homelessness. The goal is to help them resolve minor legal obstacles which otherwise could impede their attempts to obtain housing. Outreach Court is a national best practice, and a concept that has had very positive outcomes in other cities across the country. I am excited and proud to see it implemented here.

Other successes are evidenced by workgroups that have taken the lead in the development of a common set of service standards, the implementation of a culinary arts training and placement program, ongoing progress with implementing of the Homeless Management Information System (HMIS), progress toward the development of an integrated planning and funding structure, and rolling out an evaluative research study which will objectively measure our progress into the future. We haven’t eliminated homelessness yet, but the evidence that we are moving forward is all around us in the successes we can see.

I offer my sincerest thanks to everyone who has helped to make this year a success. There have been some spirited and valuable debates: evidence that we all want to successfully eliminate homelessness. Changing an entire system is hard work, but as we look ahead, I am encouraged by the wisdom of the following quote: “If you always do what you’ve always done, you will always get what you’ve always gotten.”

Blessings,

The Shelter Association of Washtenaw County

The Shelter Association’s mission is to provide temporary shelter and supportive services in a safe and caring environment and to work with the community to allocate the necessary resources to meet the needs of individual adults who are homeless.

The Robert J. Delonis Center is the first step in our community’s Blue Print to End Homelessness and was built as the new home of the Shelter Association of Washtenaw County. Our goal is to serve our clients by developing action plans that are suited to each individual and their unique set of circumstances.

Our model of combining shelter with other services which already exist within our community is cost effective and efficient; it does not duplicate any existing operations and it brings the services our clients need under a single roof. Any community with reasonable resources can replicate this model and build upon the foundation we have created.

The Washtenaw Housing Alliance wants to recognize Saint Joseph Mercy Health System (SJMHS) for its ongoing and unflagging support. SJMHS continues to provide all employee benefits for WHA full time staff.

We also want to recognize Washtenaw County for its generous in-kind support of office space, telephone and computer equipment and service and technical support.

Grateful thanks to these community organizations who helped to make our September 21, 2004 Community Forum such a success.
