

Betsy Carrier

Betsy has a broad understanding of the health care marketplace with an expertise in health system transformation, Medicaid, health care reform, and familiarity with a range of other health policy issues. She conducts policy research and analysis; assesses operational implications of policy changes; and develops training programs. She has worked for physician peer review organizations, directed managed care programs for a union health plan, and served as vice president of education at the National Association of Public Hospitals. Betsy currently assists consumer groups and safety net providers prepare for changes in the health care delivery system.

Betsy has an MBA from Baruch College and the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York.