On Thursday, May 11, The SEED School of Maryland and distinguished guests will celebrate our third graduating class of seniors, the Class of 2021. Because our students’ ultimate goal is college graduation, we use that graduation year to describe our classes from the moment they enter our doors in the sixth grade.

Ninety-eight percent of our students have been accepted to a four-year college or university, thanks in part to The SEED Foundation’s College Transition & Success (CTS) program—the first college success team of its kind in the nation. With their support, our SEED graduates become self-directed, self-motivated and prepared to succeed in college and life.

This year’s keynote speaker is Kevin Liles—record and entertainment executive, former president of Def Jam Recordings, former executive vice president of The Island Def Jam Music Group, current president of KWL Enterprises—and longtime SEED supporter and Board of Trustees member.

We hope that you will join us in this celebration of lives changed and futures brightened by serving as an underwriter for our celebration.

Thank you very much for considering this request, and for embracing The SEED School of Maryland’s mission to transform our students’ lives.
