Presentations will be announced by June 15th, 2018 on the Central Region

Website: www.centralregionnats.org and via e-mail to each person who submitted a proposal.

Proposals not chosen for the conference will be eligible for consideration for the topical breakfast, held on the second morning of the conference.

All presenters will be expected to be registered participants in the conference. The goal of this conference is to provide a forum to present and share pedagogic knowledge between members of the region. To help foster this academic community, people chosen to present and to lead topical breakfast discussions will be expected to register and participate in the conference.

All applicants will also have the option of having their presentation listed in the Central Region NATS Knowledge Bank. The Knowledge Bank is a new resource of presentations to help connect educators in the region with available presentational resources within the membership of Central Region NATS. This resource is located at <http://www.centralregionnats.org/new-page/>
