Conserving Ecologically Valuable Land

Urban sprawl, resource extraction, and poorly enforced environmental regulations place enormous pressures on natural resources. Natural areas need a combination of land protections and sustainable use policies to ensure clean air, clean water, and sustainability. The geographic focus of this area will be the southeastern United States, with priority given to the Southern Appalachians and the states of Tennessee, North Carolina, Kentucky, South Carolina, Georgia, and Virginia.

Blue Ridge Forever

Asheville, NC

$25,000

First year of two-year $50,000 grant to support partner land trust coordination and the protection of high priority land and water resources and resiliency to climate change.

Fiscal Sponsor: Southern Appalachian Highlands Conservancy

The Wilderness Society

Washington, DC

$50,000

To support citizen engagement for a new Management Plan for the Nantahala-Pisgah National Forest.

Making Paper Production Sustainable

Paper production is a highly toxic, carbon-emitting, water-intensive, and forest-reliant industry. There are a number of ways to improve the environmental impact of the sector. The goal is to increase the rates of recycled paper in large paper sectors, reduce sourcing from endangered forests, and maximize clean production.

As You Sow

Oakland, CA
$30,000

To support increased recycled paper content in consumer goods packaging through increased curbside and in-store recycling of food and beverage cartons.

Bellingham, WA
$40,000

2nd year of two-year grant to support the campaigns to influence major corporations to adopt progressive practices for purchasing and using paper.

Promoting Energy Efficiency and Carbon Pricing

The cheapest and fastest way to reduce demand for electric power is through energy efficiency. In order to maximize the carbon and financial savings, a combination of motivational factors are needed for implementation including low cost, simplicity, accessibility, and regulatory oversight. Similarly, putting a price on carbon will incentivize a clean-energy economy. The goal is to support state and regional policies in the Northeast and Southeast that provide incentives and subsidies for energy efficiency and carbon pricing implementation.
