LifeWorks is a fearless advocate for families seeking their path to self-sufficiency.
a fearless advocate for youth and families seeking their path to self-sufficiency.
LifeWorks Education and Workforce Division is focused on developing the knowledge and skills needed to navigate the challenges of adolescence, move toward independence, and break the cycle of poverty. Through these services, youth and adults can achieve their educational goals, increase employability, gain independent living and parenting skills, and set themselves on a path to self-sufficiency.
EDUCATION AND WORKFORCE SERVICES
LifeWorks Education and Workforce Services support clients in pursuing their individual goals through preparation for a High School Equivalency Certification (GED, HiSET), support to access further education and training, and connection to employment opportunities.

High School Equivalency Prep classes are provided year-round with open enrollment. Lesson plans are flexible in order to individualize students’ academic needs.

Supported Education may include familiarizing clients with educational institutions or training providers, helping to complete applications, tutoring, navigating financial aid, providing direct assistance for books and supplies, and introducing clients to campus resources and personnel.

Supported Employment promotes recovery and wellness through placement and support in meaningful employment that aligns with the clients’ preferences and strengths.

TEEN PARENTING SERVICES
Teen parents are provided case management services to help them access the resources they need to complete their education and develop effective parenting skills. Each youth outlines an individual plan with a case manager that may include such goals as: finding stable housing, child care, health care, an alternative education program, or counseling. Case managers provide home and school visits to pregnant and parenting teens.
NEXT STEP
The Next Step program provides school and community-based instruction and activities to children and youth. The program is designed to strengthen social and emotional skills in order to promote positive youth development. Research has demonstrated that the acquisition of these skills helps to prevent youth involvement in substance abuse and violence.

REAL TALK
LifeWorks and collaborative partners provide evidence-based comprehensive sexuality education and pregnancy prevention programming to youth, parents, and teachers. Services are provided in select schools and community sites in the Austin area.

Services Provided:

- Small group sessions across middle schools with 6th-10th grade students.
- Small group discussions between trained REAL Talk staff and parents of 10-14 year olds.
- Teacher training to increase comfort and capacity to implement sexuality education services.
