A RARE AND EXCLUSIVE LOOK IN GLP INDIA IS

“THE WEAKNESS OF THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT REFLECTS A CONSIDERABLE SHIFT IN POWER TO THE STATES... WHAT HAPPENS IN THE STATES WILL INCREASINGLY DETERMINE INDIA’S ECONOMIC FORTUNES”

ARVIND SUBRAMANIAN,
CENTRE FOR GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT.

designed to broaden your personal and professional perspectives so that you can develop a deeper capacity to lead effectively and more strategically.

The programme will enable you to foster a broad understanding of leadership in a country that is rapidly transforming into a global economic powerhouse. By maturing your understanding of Indian leadership you will naturally facilitate a deeper insight into Australian ways of leading and establish a critical appreciation of leadership in a cross-cultural context.

AS A LEADER

you will be more confident, poised and globally literate. You will have a clearer understanding of the current and future implications for Australia in relation to India. You will be rewarded with new ideas on how to build organisational capacity and capability in preparation for a globalised world.

AS A PARTICIPANT

you will come away with strong global literacy and a realistic, balanced informed view of India and its relationship with Australia. Your self-awareness will be heightened as you are exposed to new ways of thinking about your own practice of leadership. You will also increase your capability to navigate complexity, manage paradox and think strategically.

The Global Leadership Practices programme is a ground-breaking programme for senior executives and leaders keen to arm themselves with privileged and invaluable insights into the workings and thinking of India’s booming private sector and the political, social and economic factors that influence this landscape.

The programme is presented by Yellow Edge in exclusive partnership with the Prin L.N. Welingkar Institute of Management Development and Research, Bangalore also known as WE School.

PROGRAMME PRESENTERS

Dr David Brewster

Visiting Fellow, Strategic and Defence Studies Centre

David is one of Australia's leading academic experts on strategy and security in South Asia and the Indian Ocean region.

He originally trained as an international corporate lawyer and practiced for around 20 years in Washington DC, New York, London, Paris and Sydney, including as a partner in a major Sydney law firm. Since 2006, David has built an international reputation in the field of strategic and security studies.

He currently holds appointments as Senior Research Fellow with the National Security College, Distinguished Research Fellow with the Australia India Institute, University of Melbourne; Fellow with the Royal Australian Navy Sea Power Centre, Canberra; and Visiting Fellow with the Strategic and Defence Studies Centre, Australian National University.

Dr Shameem Black

Fellow, Department of Gender, Media and Cultural Studies, School of Culture, History and Language

Shameem joined the Australian National University from the United States, where she received her PhD from Stanford University and served as an Assistant Professor of postcolonial literature in the English Department at Yale University.

Her research and teaching focus on globalization and ethics in contemporary Anglophone fiction, with particular attention to South Asia, Asian diasporas, and the cultural work of English in Asia.

Shameem's most recent work, a series of essays, explores a global body of literature concerned with the problems of reconciliation after mass conflict. Focusing on an era of international courts, truth commissions, political apologies, and commemorative work, these essays inquire how literature from at the turn of the millennium contributes to the process of social restoration. In particular, they investigate how people considered "outsiders" to mass conflict might have a role to play in grappling with its aftermath.
