You can have a lot of fun with this bit of nonsense. You could divide the choir into three groups, each taking one section and repeating it. You could sing the whole thing through as a round. It's so easy to learn that you can get it going very quickly, then play around with dynamics and tempo.

We like to give singers one section to sing, then ask them to walk around the room, mingling together so that they hear the other parts coming and going around them. It's a great way to get novice singers used to holding a line while listening to other parts.
