Dear Friends,

LA Family Housing is proud to share our 2021 Impact Report with you, reflecting our work and notable achievements over the past year.

The devastating effects of COVID-19 have impacted our economy and our most vulnerable residents over the last two years. And yet, LA Family Housing (LAFH) stepped up with a laser focus to work with hope, resilience, and community.

Like so many of you, we spent 2021 rebuilding, reconnecting, and continuing to respond to the ongoing COVID-19 crisis. We began to transform our initial emergency response to the pandemic into sustainable improvements to our organizational infrastructure and the ways we provide services to our most vulnerable community members.

Our growth as a community in 2021 was monumental. Throughout the year, we welcomed 234 new staff and 1,007 new donors. This expanded capacity enabled us to connect nearly 12,000 Angelenos—more than any other year in LAFH history—with the housing and services that end homelessness in their lives, for good.

The LAFH community also grew in less quantifiable ways. In response to the reckoning on racial justice and equity our country experienced in 2020, the LA Family Housing Board of Directors and our staff made a commitment to look inward, acknowledging that we cannot be a mission-driven organization without first addressing our own inequities. In 2021, we invested in a Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) Initiative to help build a diverse and deeply inclusive workplace culture. As a team of nearly 500 employees, we listened to and learned from each other to assess where we needed to grow, and to identify steps to create a more equitable work experience for everyone. This process culminated in the adoption of LAFH’s new Culture Statement and Strategic Plan (refer to page 21).

Looking ahead, there is much to be hopeful for in the near future. In fact, as we share this report, we have already broken ground on two new permanent supportive housing projects this year and will complete construction on two more this fall, ending homelessness for hundreds of individuals and families in the coming years. Our Campus was an active LA County Vote Center for the 2022 Primary Election in order to further engage our participants, staff, and community in the well-being of our democracy.

As always, we are continuously inspired by our dedicated Board of Directors and brilliant colleagues, who drive forward our mission to end homelessness each and every day. And we appreciate YOU, our incredible community of supporters, for making it possible for us to have achieved everything we have laid out in this report. At a time when so much remains uncertain, know that we are grateful to work in partnership with you.

Together, we are leading the way home.

With gratitude,
Stephanie and Gregg

Outreach and Engagement

LA Family Housing uses street-based outreach and in-person engagement to begin the process of moving people home.

Trained specialists go into the community, establish trust with people in encampments, and gradually connect them with the housing and essential supportive services that end homelessness in their lives, including mental and physical healthcare, substance use support, trauma recovery counseling, employment and benefits resources, and assistance with documentation needed to access services.

* Number declined in 2021 following a sharp increase in outreach engagements in 2020 as part of our emergency COVID-19 response.
Eric understands better than most the extensive barriers people experiencing homelessness face when accessing services. He lived in an encampment on the side of a busy intersection for more than four years, focused entirely on day-to-day survival. Without a roof over his head, just finding a hot meal or a place to shower—let alone undertaking the complex process of seeking and obtaining housing resources—were exhausting, time-consuming ordeals.

Eric’s luck finally turned around when he went through a substance use treatment program that eventually connected him with housing. He applied for a job as a drug and alcohol counselor at LAFH, sure he would be denied because of his background and lack of experience. Instead, Eric’s life experience was exactly what he needed to succeed.

Eric was among the first members of the LAFH Street Outreach and Engagement team, which brings support directly to our vulnerable neighbors who may not otherwise seek it out. As LAFH’s outreach program grows every year, its philosophy remains the same: meet people where they are. As Eric knows first-hand, this kind of proactive engagement isn’t just effective in ending homelessness: it saves lives.

“I know what each day is like on the street,” he says. “That gives me a sense of urgency, because I know that every day can be your last.”

When I was homeless, I was just five miles away from LA Family Housing. For years, I never knew it existed.

—ERIC
Housing Placement

Everyone deserves the dignity of a home. LAFH works with individuals and families who come through our doors to connect them with the interim and permanent supportive housing that best meets their needs. In addition to our own apartment portfolio, we manage a vast network of landlord connections to help program participants find homes.

Miguel loved being a dad. But when the mother of his children turned to substance use, his children were taken from him and placed in foster care. Committed to getting his kids back, Miguel began taking required parenting classes and counseling sessions, but the time commitment made it impossible for him to maintain employment. Over time, he lost his job, his car, and eventually, his home, making getting his kids back even more out of reach.

For two long years, Miguel survived homelessness alone, walking five miles to and from parenting classes every day until he finally regained custody of his kids.

Miguel began working with Veronica, an LAFH Housing Stabilizer, who helped him immediately move into safe interim housing. Veronica assisted Miguel in securing a Section 8 voucher, and he and his family moved into a two-bedroom apartment.

Regaining custody of his children and moving into a permanent home gave Miguel a renewed sense of confidence and purpose. He has ambitious goals for the future, including securing employment he is passionate about and eventually traveling to Mexico with his children. In the meantime, he is focused on what’s important: being a loving father, raising good kids, and positively impacting his community.

“Without LAFH, I would be on the streets, with or without my kids. I am so grateful to everyone who has helped me.”

— MIGUEL

Staff Highlight / Veronica

When the father of Veronica’s five-year-old son became violent, she took her son and left without a plan or support network to rely on. She struggled to make ends meet as a single parent, working and attending college at the same time. Every month, she wondered how she would afford necessities like rent, her electric bill, and putting food on the table.

Years later, these life experiences give Veronica a unique perspective in her role as a Housing Stabilizer at LAFH. She works closely with families like Miguel’s who are transitioning out of homelessness and into permanent housing to ensure they have the support and resources to remain successfully housed. Her role entails everything from helping families secure critical housing vouchers, to connecting them with healthcare resources, to working with them to build life skills like budgeting and cooking.

“I know what support families need because I have been that parent,” she says. “I can read through the lines and really hear them when they tell their stories.”

Veronica has worked with approximately 150 families since starting her role in 2019. The excitement she feels when she hands a family the key to their new home never changes.

“I love being the person to give a family the key to their new home,” she says. “It reminds me of what I wish I knew earlier in life: there’s always hope to change your story. It fills me with joy to give back to families every day.”
Supportive Services

No two experiences of homelessness are the same. Therefore, the solutions to homelessness are also unique to each person.

From the initial point of engagement to the critical first months after housing placement, LAFH constantly assesses, engages, and re-engages participants to provide them with the individualized support that enables them to establish personal stability and thrive.

Our comprehensive service model includes: connections to mental and physical health care; trauma recovery services, including resources for survivors of domestic violence; substance use disorder treatment; employment and education support; financial literacy; and youth programs. Where we don’t provide services directly, we are proud to leverage our broad network of partner agencies throughout the region to meet the specialized needs of our community.

LA Family Housing helped me find a job I love. They held a job fair that I attended and where I met my current employer. Their support went a long way toward helping me achieve my goals.

Program Highlight / Family Mental Health

Mental health issues are common across all populations of people experiencing homelessness, yet there are significantly more resources available to individuals than families. For example, on-site mental health services for single adults living in interim housing are reimbursable through public contracts, but not for families.

LAFH launched the Family Mental Health pilot program in 2021 to address the pressing need for mental health services for families living in interim housing. Each of our interim housing sites for families, including motels, is staffed by Mental Health Specialists who provide clinical interventions onsite, such as family, individual and group counseling sessions and referrals to external providers such as substance use treatment centers, domestic violence services, and psychiatric care. Access to these services for families transitioning out of homelessness leads to improved rates of housing retention and personal stability, and reduced incidences of family violence, substance use disorder, interactions with the criminal justice system, and family court systems. Through this initiative, which is funded solely through private philanthropic dollars, we aim to shift public funding availability for these services to further expand access.

Partner Highlight / The Change Reaction

LA Family Housing has partnered with The Change Reaction since 2019 when its founders, Jodi and Greg Perlman, established the Perlman Angel Fund at LAFH. Through this program, LAFH participants can receive one-time grants to help them overcome obstacles to achieving housing stability. The Change Reaction also established an LAFH Professional Development Fund, giving LAFH staff an opportunity for professional development and career growth. In total, over 130 staff members have benefited from the Professional Development Fund, and more than 400 participants have received grants through the Angel Fund.
Real Estate Development

As a real estate developer and a homeless services provider, LAFH recognizes that one essential key to ending homelessness in our region is to increase the supply of permanently affordable homes. Our current portfolio of 34 interim, affordable, and permanent supportive properties across LA County provides housing and stability for thousands of people each year—and we’re still building!

2021 was an exceptional year of growth for the LAFH Real Estate team despite the continued challenges of COVID-19. We:

- Opened The Willows and The Nest, two new interim housing projects that provide safe temporary housing and supportive services to individuals and families transitioning out of homelessness
- Began construction on Talisa Apartments, a 49-unit permanent supportive housing community for families to be completed by 2023
- Continued construction on Summit View Apartments, a 48-unit permanent supportive housing community for Veterans, which will open in 2022

—PAMELA

Pamela’s Story

Pamela fell into homelessness after unexpectedly losing her apartment. As an unaccompanied woman, living alone on the streets was lonely and dangerous. Eventually, Pamela got a small dog, Stella, to help her feel safer at night. Pamela and Stella soon became inseparable, but as a result, Pamela could not access shelters where companion animals were not allowed. For years, the two had no choice but to stay on the streets.

Eventually, Pamela was connected with LAFH. In January 2021, she and Stella moved into The Arroyo (pictured above), LAFH’s women-only, pet-friendly interim housing site.

Living at The Arroyo helped Pamela regain personal stability as she continued her journey to permanent housing. She accessed onsite mental and physical health care and began meeting regularly with a Housing Navigator to continue her journey to a permanent home. By mid-September, Pamela and her Housing Navigator found a beautiful apartment for her and Stella to move into—permanently. Pamela says the nurturing environment at The Arroyo enabled her to begin recovering from the trauma she experienced on the streets as she transitioned out of homelessness.
Innovation in Housing Development

Leveraging State Resources
California’s Project Homekey initiative, which uses COVID relief funds to acquire motels in order to convert them into permanent homes, is considered the fastest, largest, and most cost-effective method for creating new housing in state history. LAFH now owns four Project Homekey properties, which in the short-term provide critically-needed interim housing and services to hundreds of individuals experiencing homelessness across Los Angeles. LAFH is excited to leverage the Project Homekey program to accelerate production and reduce the costs of bringing 250 permanent supportive homes online in the next two years.

Financing Innovations
LAFH launched our Private Equity Initiative in 2021 to renovate and repurpose three Project Homekey motels into permanent supportive housing for 250 individuals experiencing homelessness. Through this initiative, LAFH set a goal to raise $32 million in equity to bypass traditional public funding mechanisms. In so doing, we are saving two years and $4 million per development. Our goal is to bring about policy changes locally and at the state level to remove barriers inherent in the traditional financing model for affordable housing.

Private Funding Compared to Public Funding

Modular Construction
To minimize neighborhood disruption, reduce costs, and expedite construction, LAFH is using modular construction on two upcoming buildings totalling 164 units. Modular design and construction is a method by which housing sections, or "modules", are built in a controlled factory environment off-site and delivered to the construction site as completed units, which significantly cuts down on the amount of work and time spent onsite, decreasing the overall project costs as well as standardizing the construction of each unit.
Community Partnerships

For the past several years, employees from Home Depot stores across Los Angeles have gathered to support Winter Wonderland, an annual holiday party for families transitioning out of homelessness.

In 2021, a crew of 20 Home Depot volunteers arrived at our Campus with trucks, delivery drivers, and enough wrapping materials, decorations, and festive cheer to transform LAFH’s Winn Community Center into Santa’s Workshop. Over two days, they wrapped more than 1,000 toys; compiled 200 holiday decoration kits complete with handwritten cards; and delivered Christmas trees, ornaments, and lights to each of LAFH’s 11 interim housing sites. Team Home Depot even donated brooms, trash cans, and bags to assist with the often-overlooked, post-festivities clean-up process. This comprehensive, behind-the-scenes support was instrumental in pulling off a successful Winter Wonderland event that brightened the holidays for hundreds of families transitioning out of homelessness.

Home Depot values giving back to our community, and we are proud to support LA Family Housing’s critical mission to end homelessness. Our team looks forward to brightening the holidays for these families every year.
