

EDITORIAL: LAND TRUST HAS A WORTHY GOAL

We wish the Stonington Land Trust good luck in raising the $2 million it needs to purchase the conservation easement on 168 acres that are part of the Stanton-Davis Farm in Stonington.

It is a worthy piece of property to be saved from development and is noted as once being part of a Native American ceremonial ground.

It complements the recent donation of 3.25 acres on Osbrook Point Road that was also once part of the farm.

The trust has three years to raise the money. We won't say it will be easy, but if people get behind the effort it can happen, and it should.
