Book Summary

My Worst/Best Sleepover Party is the story of Rose, a sensitive, energetic, and intelligent little girl trying to plan her birthday party. With the help of her teacher and mother, she decides to have a sleepover party. Rose plans to invite eleven friends in her class, but most important of all, her best friend Stacey.

Rose's problems begin when Hailey and Bailey, two other girls in her class, say that they'll come only if Stacey doesn't come. The good-natured little girl doesn't understand why this is happening, and tries to think of logical reasons for their behavior. The reality is, it's simply that Hailey and Bailey are bullies who want to prove that they have the power to control people and their actions.

At first, their tactics work. Afraid that Hailey, Bailey, and the other girls in their clique won't come to her party, Rose initially rejects her best friend to win their favor. But after talking to her mother, she decides to remain loyal to Stacey. Rose's mom thinks that the next step would be to involve Rose's teacher, Mrs. Sharpe. But when Mrs. Sharpe tries to resolve the conflict by bringing all three girls together, the bullies predictably lie, denying that they ever threatened Rose. Afterwards, they confront Rose for telling on them, and turn most of the other girls in the class against her.

Bullying is a hot social issue that concerns us all. Through the news, we have become increasingly aware of the tragic consequences when older children are bullied because of their special needs, race, religion, sexual orientation, or gender identification. We know that older children verbally and physically intimidate younger, smaller children and sometimes resort to cyber bullying kids their own age. My Worst/Best Sleepover Party is a chapter book for young children that confronts bullying at its core. It's about very young girls who bully their classmates through “in your face” threats, intimidation, and exclusion. The story makes it clear that bullies don't need technology or a reason to torment their victims. Other themes explored are the power of friendship, independence, and parental responsibility in identifying their children as being bullied or as bullies themselves.

The story is appropriate for native speakers from grades two to five, and can be easily adapted for ESL students the same age. It is a chapter book written by Anna Morgan and Dr. Rachael Yurkienicz. The book includes illustrations and is 121 pages long.
PART A

Pre-Reading Activities
ACTIVITY 1

Building a Culture of Friendship

To create an atmosphere of zero tolerance for bullying in your classroom. The students need to understand and practise collegiality toward one another.

This activity can be used for small groups or as a class assignment.

Give the students this discussion worksheet.
ACTIVITY 1

Being Friends with Classmates

Directions:

a. Read these situations and talk about them with your classmates.

b. Answer the questions at the end of each situation. Give reasons for your answers.

c. We will discuss these situations together when you’re finished.

1. When you get the chance to pick groups in class, you work with the same students all the time. You don’t work with other kids because they don’t speak English well and you can’t understand them. Are you doing the best thing?
   YES          NO
   Why or why not? What else could you do?

2. You eat lunch in the lunchroom with different students every day. You see another student eating lunch alone, but you don’t invite him to your table. Are you doing the right thing?
   YES          NO
   Why or why not? What else could you do?

3. Your classmate brings her cultural food for lunch which you have never seen or eaten before. When she asks if you want to try some, you make a face and say that it looks and smells “yucky”. Did you say the right thing?
   YES          NO
   Why or why not? What else could you do?

4. In the playground, you and your friends have been playing on the monkey bars for a long time. Your classmate is standing near you but you don’t invite her to play with you because you think that he is too big. You laugh at him when he tries to do anything physical. Is that the right thing to do?
   YES          NO
   Why or why not? What else could you do?
5. You’re doing an art project in school and sharing markers with four other students at a big table. One of your classmates takes most of the markers and moves to a table by herself. The student tells you that she is the best artist and that the rest of you draw like babies. You let that student work by herself. You just take out your own markers from home and share them with the students at the table. Is that the best thing to do?

   YES          NO

   Why or why not? What else could you do?

6. Before school, one of your classmates shows you that he has special cupcakes for lunch. When you’re both sitting down at lunch, you see that the cupcakes are gone. You ask your friend about them, and he says that another kid took them from him. You share your cookies with your friend. Did you do the best thing?

   YES          NO

   Why or why not? What else could you do?

7. You have a classmate who uses a wheelchair. The school has a fire drill and everyone has to leave. Your teacher wheels your classmate out and you see that most of your classmates are running ahead of them, and not stopping to help. You hear some of them say that they are not walking with the “crippled kid.” You decide you are going to walk with your classmate and teacher. Did you do the best thing?

   YES          NO

   Why or why not? Is there anything else you could do?

8. A new student who only speaks a little English comes to your class. She is working hard to understand her work and to speak as much English as she can. A group of students laugh at her whenever she speaks. You hear them call her rude names like “stupid” and “dummy.” You tell them to stop and you tell your teacher what you have heard. Did you do the best thing?

   YES          NO

   Why or why not? Is there anything else you could do?

9. After Christmas vacation, everyone comes back to school with new games, activities and toys they got as presents. Your teacher gives your class some free time to show, play and share your presents with your classmates. You see that your classmate doesn't have anything. You hear your classmates making fun of the “poor kid” who didn't get any Christmas presents. You decide to give her one of your new coloring books and markers because you have lots of them. Did you do the best thing?

   YES          NO

   Why or why not? Is there anything else you could do?
10. Your group of friends at school all decide to wear blue running shoes on Fridays. One of your friends wears her white running shoes instead. The rest of your group makes fun of her and call her bad names like “stupid” and “loser.” You don’t go along with them but you don’t stop them either. At recess you see your friend crying by herself in the schoolyard. You go and sit with her until she stops crying. Did you do the best thing?

YES    NO

Why or why not? Is there anything else you could do?
ACTIVITY 2

ROLE PLAYS and PANTOMIMES

To differentiate instruction, students who have challenges in their communication skills can either role play or pantomime the situations in Activity 1. Pantomimes and role plays would be helpful to integrate ESL students, to improve their communication, and to demonstrate their comprehension of the assignment.
ACTIVITY 3

Writing a Class Code of Conduct

Use the first two activities to brainstorm and create a class code of conduct. Using a Smart Board or chart paper, create a chart that might look like this.

CLASSMATES CAN BECOME GOOD FRIENDS WHEN

1. We always work in class with all different students.
2. We invite new students to eat lunch with us.
3. We are polite when we try food from our classmates’ different cultures.
4. We make sure that all students have their turn using playground equipment.
5. We share school supplies with all students.
6. We tell our teacher or another adult in school when we see one student is being mean to another student.
7. We help students with special needs in emergencies, or to participate in school activities.
8. We never make fun of the way someone speaks English.
9. We share our own toys and activities with our friends
10. We are never make fun of the way someone looks.

Make sure that this chart is prominently displayed in your classroom or your classroom website. Refer to it periodically, especially when students need to be reminded of appropriate behavior.
ACTIVITY 4

Making Friendship Badges

This activity would be appropriate for Grade 2 students. Students can print or type their favorite phrase on a star-shaped badge and the teacher will print them out as labels. Then, laminate the label pages so that they can be reused.

1. INVITE NEW STUDENTS TO EAT LUNCH
2. WORK WITH EVERYONE
3. SHARE SCHOOL SUPPLIES
4. TAKE TurnerS IN GROUPS
5. ALWAYS WALK CALMLY; NEVER PUSH OR SHOVE ANYONE
6. ALWAYS USE POLITE WORDS
7. NEVER LAUGH AT ANYONE’S SPEAKING
8. HELP EVERYONE IN AN EMERGENCY
9. INVITE STUDENTS TO PLAY GAMES
10. NEVER LAUGH AT SOMEONE’S LOOKS

Each student chooses one of the phrases above and prints it on their stars, but adding the word I. They wear the star for one week, promising to model the behavior printed on it. At the end or beginning of each week, have students trade badges so that all students have the chance to model different positive behavior.

Understanding Slang

Understanding and using modern slang is a challenge for ESL students. Rose, the protagonist of the story, talks fast and uses a lot of slang when she speaks. In this worksheet, students identify the meaning of slang words used “in context” in the story.

If necessary, give students grade-appropriate generic exercises on identifying slang before giving them this assignment. Exercises are readily available online or in textbooks.

Give students this worksheet. Allow students to use their books and allow ESL students and first language learners to work together. People often use slang in conversation. Suggest that students take turns in their pairs or groups speaking the examples so that they practise the inflection used in slang.

PART C

Extension/Enrichment Activities
Organizing a Multicultural Fair

Organize a multicultural fair in your classroom. The way you do it will depend on the number of students in your classroom, and the multicultural mix among your students. For example, encourage two or three students from the same culture to work together to plan their displays. Provide students from the same culture with a booth or table where they can display any items from their culture: food, clothing, crafts, maps, books, and music. Involve parents in the event and if possible, use any translators so that your ESL parents and students can fully participate.

Organizing and staging a multicultural fair fosters understanding of and respect for multiculturalism and is an important deterrent to bullying.

Multicultural Fair: Student Feedback Sheet

Either online or on hard copy, give your students the opportunity to express their feelings and opinions about what they saw and learned about different cultures. It would be an important values clarification assignment to foster interest in and respect for cultures completely unlike their own.

Here is a feedback sheet that students should see before you put on the event.
ACTIVITY 10

ACTIVITY 11

Presenting Anti-Bullying Role Plays and Pantomimes

Have your students present the scenarios and role plays/pantomimes, which they worked on in Activities 1 and 2, to a larger audience in a school assembly about anti-bullying. Assign different students to introduce the role plays and present them. If possible, with your help, have students be moderators of a discussion about bullying prevention. After presenting each scenario, they can rehearse asking questions such as the following. They can print these questions on chart paper or create a PowerPoint presentation, asking the questions after presenting each scenario.

1. What does this role play or pantomime tell us about bullying?
2. What does this role play or pantomime tell us about how we can prevent bullying?
3. What kind of people are bullies? What are their character traits?
4. What do bullies want to do to the people they bully?
5. What should we do when we see bullies at school?
