Through the Lens

Alexey Titarenko uncovers the mystique of Venice.

PHOTOGRAPHER ALEXEY TITARENKO FORCES VIEWERS NOT TO PERCEIVE life in black and white; he makes them see the shades of gray, spurring their imagination, their intuition, and their senses. Born in St. Petersburg, Russia, in 1962, Titarenko has works in major collections in Europe and the U.S. During the years 2001 through 2008, he captured the surreal atmosphere of Venice in a series of photographs. An exhibition of approximately 25 gelatin silver prints titled Alexey Titarenko: Venice is on display at Nailya Alexander Gallery through May 10.
