FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – June 15, 2016

Law firm associate named President of Fairfield County Bar Association

Lancaster, Ohio – Alyssa L. Parrott, associate at Dagger, Johnston, Miller, Ogilvie & Hampson, LLP (Dagger Law), has recently been named President of the Fairfield County Bar Association, a voluntary organization of over 140 attorneys who represent Fairfield County and central Ohio.

The Fairfield County Bar Association strives to facilitate the administration of justice, present high standards of integrity, honor and dignity in the legal profession, maintain rapport and cooperation with local, state, federal and other bar associations, and cultivate the spirit of good fellowship among members.

Prior to being named president of the Bar Association, a title she will hold until June 2017, Parrott served as secretary, treasurer and vice president. She was previously employed at the Franklin County Probate Court as a law clerk and then a staff attorney. As an associate at Dagger Law, she is engaged in the general practice of law with the firm, with an emphasis on family and juvenile law.

Parrott received her law degree from Capital University Law School in 2010. She graduated Magna Cum Laude from Ohio University in 2006 with a bachelor's degree in political science. While in law school, she was active in the Women's Law Association; the Legal Professionalism Association; was a member of Phi Alpha Delta, the international professional law fraternity; and received the CALI award in the area of interviewing and counseling. Parrott currently resides in Groveport with her husband and daughter.
