Networking
Increase personal, professional, and institutional networks with leaders in health professions education and practice. This could include your students and faculty.

Professional Development
Participate in highly advanced professional development activities with keynote speakers through the Association’s sponsored and co-sponsored conferences and summits.

Leadership Development Program
Designed to educate new deans, associate/assistant deans, and department chairpersons. The program features outstanding guest speakers who possess significant expertise and experience in various aspects of higher education administration.

Research and Development
Faculty, students and practitioners can be involved with timely research, development, and action-oriented projects that have an impact on allied health education, research, and service delivery.

Representation on the Federal Level
Benefit from the direct access for representation on national task forces, committees, and advisory commissions.

Research and Development
Faculty, students and practitioners can be involved with timely research, development, and action-oriented projects that have an impact on allied health education, research, and service delivery.

Representation in Health Organizations
Serve on various accrediting bodies and hold representative membership in groups such as the Interprofessional Education Collaborative, the National Academies of Sciences, among others.

Institutional Profile Survey
Contribute data and benefit from a comprehensive yearly statistical profile of member institutions which includes faculty profiles and salary data.

Reduced Event Registration Fees
Attend ASAHP conferences and other meetings at a lower rate.
Publications
Receive complimentary subscriptions to the biweekly ASAHP Update, “The Week in Review,” the Association's monthly newsletter TRENDS, and its official scholarly publication, the Journal of Allied Health. Faculty have the opportunity to serve as manuscript reviewers.

Background Checks
As a result of a partnership with the firm of CertifiedBackground.com, which provides criminal and immunization background checks, ASAHP members are entitled to receive discounts, participate in webinars, and have students in member institutions obtain scholarships in conjunction with the Association's Scholarship of Excellence Program.

Scholarship of Excellence Program
The program recognizes outstanding students from member institution in the health professions who are achieving excellence in their academic programs and have significant potential to assume future leadership roles in the allied health professions. The selected student will receive a $1,000 scholarship, and the most outstanding recipient will receive an additional $1,000 and the title of Elwood Scholar.

Visibility
Showcase institutions, programs, faculty members and clinical affiliates. Serve as a sponsor for the annual conference. Advertise Faculty, administrative, and clerical position openings on the website.

For more information on how to join, contact us at 202-237-6481 or Jacoby Lawrence at jacey@asahp.org.