GROWING PLANTS...
GROWING MINDS

You know us for growing plants, but did you also know that we grow minds?

We take great pride in offering a unique educational experience to our campers. Summer is a time for children to explore our trails, scoop and examine organisms from our waterways, learn about pollination and identification of plants, make art, act in plays, and have fun!

We need your help to broaden the availability of STEAM learning opportunities to underserved and at-risk youth. We have a summer “campership” program where we offer disadvantaged youth the opportunity to come to camp “on us.” For low-income families, summer is a time that creates social isolation. Many families cannot afford summer camp and kids are left at-home, all day. Many local camps only provide partial financial aid, but our camp is the exception. Our goal is to help these families create memories and new friendships for their children while engaging with nature.

It costs $425 to send a child to camp for one week. Won’t you please help us send 20 children to camp, not just for one week, but for all eight?

Your gift, big or small, will help us create the next generation of environmental stewards.

Please consider a gift today before our fiscal year ends on June 30.

bartlettarboretum.org/onlinegiving
GROWING MINDS