UBC & Other Academia

Christ and Cascadia Conference

Christ doesn't call us out of culture—he calls us to cultivate culture. We do that best in community. On October 14th & 15th in Seattle, join leaders in ministry, academia, and culture as we equip one another to engage Cascadian culture for Christ.

Christ & Cascadia is curating an historic gathering of academics, ministry leaders, and culture-makers from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia. Two VST faculty will be presenters, the Rev. Dr. Jason Byassee and the Rev. Dr. Ross Lockhart. More info can be found at: <http://christandcascadia.com/2016conference/>

Pacific Theatre: A Good Way Out

Opening next weekend, Pacific Theatre presents A Good Way Out, by Cara Norrish.

Joey is a hardworking mechanic who operates as the front man for a biker gang. He joined for protection, but a few bad decisions have him looking for an escape that may not exist. The world premiere of a fierce, compelling look into the precarious world of crime and compromise. Directed by Anthony F. Ingram.

Advisory:

A hard-hitting look at the realities of gang life, A Good Way Out contains very strong language. Sexual content is largely suggested through speech, but there is a brief scene that contains a coerced striptease, as well as discussions of and depictions of violence.

Tickets available at: pacifictheatre.org

Who Said It???

“There remains the serpent. I am no friend of cleverness and shall deo volente [God willing] resist the serpent’s temptations, which have in the course of time, as at the beginning of time when it tempted Adam and Eve, tempted writers to be, well, yes, clever.”

- A. Jacques Ellul
- B. Soren Kierkegaard
- C. Karl Barth
- D. Mary Shelley
