Lecture: Caring for strangers:

The Historical Contribution of Christianity

Speaker: Luke Glanville, senior lecturer in International Relations at the Australian National University

In North America, the Christian church has the reputation for being a powerful supporter of conservative ideology. This reputation is a far cry from the early church's social role. This lecture explores how early Christians radically transformed prevailing Roman understandings of social ethics. Whereas Roman philosophers endorsed a hierarchical and elitist ethic of patronage and reciprocity, the early Christians turned this upside-down, insisting that people should seek to help those most in need and those least able to reciprocate, including not only friends and family but also strangers and foreigners. The lecture traces the impact of this new ethic on the development of ideas about both social justice and international relations.

Time: Wednesday evening, Oct 12th, 7:30PM.

Location: Grandview Calvary Baptist Church, 1803 East 1st Ave., East Vancouver

Lecture: The Transfiguring God

Time: Friday, October 21

4:30 PM - 6:30 PM

Location: VST's Epiphany Chapel

Who Said It???

Last week's answer: Kierkegaard!

Bonus question: Which Kierkegaard pseudonym is responsible for the following?

“What is a poet? An unhappy person who conceals profound anguish in his heart but whose lips are so formed that as sighs and cries pass over them they sound like beautiful music...And people crowd around the poet and say to him, ‘Sing again soon’--in other words, may new sufferings torture your soul, and may your lips continue to be formed as before, because your screams would only alarm us, but the music is charming.”
