The Program

The Masters in Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language Program aims to develop professional high-caliber Chinese language teachers for K-12 schools and universities. It is offered by the Ateneo de Manila University Department of Education and Chinese Studies Program in collaboration with Sun Yat-Sen University, Confucius Institute Headquarters (Hanban) and the Ateneo Confucius Institute. This Program consists of graduate level subjects in education, advanced Chinese language, and teaching Chinese as a foreign language. The Program also offers an option to study in China during the Intercession Semester of the first year with subsidy. Furthermore, partial scholarships and subsidies for textbooks related to Teaching Chinese will be available to students.

Intercession Semester at Sun Yat-sen University, China

Students have the option to attend courses offered during the six-week Intercession Semester of the first year at Sun Yat-sen University in Guangzhou, China. Funding for dormitory and food allowances may be requested from the Ateneo Confucius Institute. Airfare, visa fee and pocket money will be shouldered by the students themselves.

Scholarships

The Confucius Institute Headquarters (Hanban) has allocated an annual scholarship subsidy for Filipino citizens. This will be in the form of 50% tuition fee subsidy and full subsidy for basic and miscellaneous fees.

Experienced teachers with outstanding credentials and strong recommendation will be considered. Accepted scholars must maintain an average grade of B+ throughout the course of study and must not have any failing marks. They must also complete the program in two years.

In addition, Filipino citizens teaching in DepEd recognized schools are qualified to avail of the AdMU 50% tuition fee discount for Education Department graduate programs. Therefore, it is possible for an applicant to be qualified to be awarded both grants and enjoy full scholarship.
