

Procedure for Manufactured Units in the Village limits

- Building means any structure having enclosed space and a roof for the housing and/or enclosure of persons, animals or chattels, except mobile homes and mobile offices.
- Structure means anything constructed or erected which requires location on the ground.
- Dwelling unit means a dwelling, or portion of a dwelling, used by one family for cooking, living and sleeping purposes.
- Dwelling means a building, or portion thereof, used primarily for residential occupancy, including single-family, two-family and multiple-family dwellings, and dwelling rentals, but not including hotels, motels or tourist homes.
- Manufactured housing means a manufactured home or modular home that is a single-family dwelling with a heated area of at least 36 by 24 feet and at least 864 square feet, constructed in a factory to the standards of the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development, the National Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974 (42 USC 5401 et seq.) and the Housing and Urban Development Zone Code II or the Uniform Building Code, as amended to the date of the unit's construction, and installed consistent with the Manufactured Housing Act (NMSA 1978, § 60-14-1 et seq.) and with the regulations made pursuant thereto relating to ground level installation and ground anchors.
- Mobile home means a factory-assembled structure exceeding eight feet in width, originally equipped with the necessary service connections and originally made so as to be readily movable as a unit on its own running gear, and designed to be used as dwelling unit without a permanent foundation, whether or not the running gear has been removed. Mobile homes may also be referred to as manufactured homes.
