Dear friends,

Numerous groups and organizations have worthy causes, but a critical question to ask is: who sets the agenda? In Food Animal Concerns Trust's (FACT) Humane Farming Program, we collaborate with humane farmers who care for pigs, chickens, turkeys, sheep, goats, and cows to identify steps to improve farm animal welfare. Our Food Safety Program agenda is based on science-identified food safety risks that result from the way that factory farms produce food.

Our collaborative and real-world approach is carried further in our education and outreach work. Throughout this past year we hosted webinars on farm animal welfare topics and provided scholarships to conferences where we enabled literally hundreds of family farmers across the nation to learn from other farmers.

Our Keep Antibiotic Working email listserv is used daily by major national public health and consumer organizations to respond to the latest scientific data. We share information on the consequences of using antibiotics on farm animals with these groups—often leading to joint actions. This has been FACT's approach since our beginning in 1982, when our founder Robert Brown connected with both farmers and scientists to establish our core programs addressing farm animal welfare and food safety.

By basing our programs on data-driven farmer and scientist input, FACT is making a difference. We are changing how food animals are raised, and how our food is produced. Due to this approach and work, this past year we have been invited to present at national farmer conferences, serve on a World Health Organization advisory panel, and work with the Food and Drug Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, and Congress.

While I am delighted to talk about FACT's accomplishments, what I really want to celebrate is the generous growing support you have provided to FACT this past year. FACT doesn't receive government grants, but instead relies on private contributions to keep our work fully independent and effective. Donors like you make it possible for FACT to address the real-life conditions of farm animals and to create change. Thank you.

All of us at FACT are deeply thankful to you for your generous support.

Sincerely,

Richard Wood
Year In Review: Humane Farming Program

FACT’s Humane Farming Program invests in family farmers seeking to raise their animals humanely by providing them with grants, scholarships, webinars, and learning opportunities.

FACT has directly assisted more than 1,238 farmers in improving animal welfare since 2012. FACT has now cumulatively awarded 119 grants to deserving family farmers across 31 states, directly impacting more than 83,000 animals and ensuring that tens of thousands of consumers have more humane, healthy, local food options available to them.

Fund-a-Farmer Grants

In February 2018, FACT awarded 28 grants to farms located in 19 states for projects that will benefit over 16,800 animals. This round of grant making included 18 Pasture Improvement Grants and 10 Animal Welfare Certification Grants, the latter of which were made possible by the generous support of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA). 2018 marks FACT’s sixth year of awarding grants to farmers who wish to improve the welfare of their farm animals.

Conference Scholarships for Farmers

Since March 2016, FACT awarded 58 scholarships for farmers to attend 18 sustainable agriculture conferences and training events across the country. FACT awards scholarships to help farmers increase their knowledge of humane animal management practices so that they can make improvements on their own operations. Scholarship recipients reported increased knowledge and skills related to humane livestock production practices as a result from attending conferences. Nearly 88% of past scholarship recipients reported that they did in fact implement some of the practices they learned about during the conference.

Many of these farmers said that they now can manage their pastures better due to improved rotational grazing of their animals. Through these scholarships, FACT is changing how farmers approach farm animal welfare.

Humane Farming Webinar Series

Over the past year, FACT has hosted 14 free webinar presentations for sustainable livestock and poultry farmers to increase knowledge and use of humane farming practices. These online presentations featured both outside experts and previous Fund-a-Farmer Grant recipients. Webinar topics included information on raising pastured poultry, grass-fed dairy production, goat herding basics, and managed grazing for soil health.

If I can change and drastically improve conditions for even just a tiny percentage of farm animals raised, and strive to give them the most humane and natural lives, then we are making a difference, for the animals and the people. - Dede Boies of Root Down Farm, 2017 FACT Grantee

Humane Farming Mentorship Program

In December 2017, FACT launched a new mentorship program for livestock farmers. Our goal is to provide beginning farmers who wish to raise their animals humanely with technical guidance, encourage them to successfully use humane practices and pursue humane certifications, and foster a sense of community. FACT facilitated the matching of 6 pairs of beginning and experienced farmers based on their stated priorities, including geography, animal type, and business goals. We will provide these farmers with support and resources over course of the year-long program.

Presentations and Publications

FACT developed the following presentations and publications to support the expansion of humane farming nationwide:

Get Your Farm Funded – How to Find and Apply for Grants

FACT offered a 90-minute workshop for farmers at the Ohio Ecological Food and Farming Association (OEFFA) Conference in February 2018. The interactive presentation discussed the types of funding that exist for farmers and how to find funding opportunities, as well as provided practical tips for crafting a successful proposal.

Humane Farming: An Environmentally Sustainable Solution

FACT prepared this 2017 report that discusses how humane farming is a more ecologically sustainable than the current standard of raising livestock and poultry on factory farms. Through these many services, FACT’s Humane Farming Program has created a community of farmers working together to improve the welfare of farm animals across the nation, which in turn provides consumers with more humane, healthy food choices for their kitchens.

FACT Farmers Address Superbug Threat

In February 2018, two of FACT’s Fund-a-Farmer grantees traveled to Washington, DC to raise awareness among policymakers about dangers of antibiotic-resistant bacteria. The farmers, Laura Sage from Red Bird Acres and Marshall Bartlett from Home Place Pastures, took part in an event organized by The Pew Charitable Trusts called Supermoms Against Superbugs. Both farms raise their animals on pasture using humane and sustainable practices that keep the animals healthy – and the use of antibiotics at a minimum.

Home Place Pastures is in Como, Mississippi. In 2018, Marshall received a Fund-a-Farmer Animal Welfare Certification Grant from FACT to construct of low-stress weaning pens for pigs to become Certified Humane.

Red Bird Acres is in the Willamette Valley region of Oregon. In 2016, Laura received a Fund-a-Farmer Pasture Improvement Grant from FACT to upgrade the farm’s brooder system to allow their broiler chicks to have access to pasture at a much younger age. In addition, the farm received a second grant in 2018 to install electric perimeter fencing for their chickens, turkeys, and pigs on pasture.
FACT’s Food Safety Program advocates for strong corporate and federal policies to end both the use of veterinary drugs known to be harmful to consumers, and the overuse of antibiotics on farms.

We have made significant progress in helping to persuade major fast food chains to commit to serving meat produced without using medically important antibiotics, and we are holding several corporations accountable to the public promises they made to reduce antibiotic usage in set timeframes. FACT is also working to convince the FDA to stand by its decision to eliminate the known carcinogen carbadox from the pork supply.

FACT leads charge on federal efforts to reduce antibiotic overuse
To stop the spread of antibiotic-resistant superbugs, FACT leads and staffs the Keep Antibiotics Working (KAW) coalition of allied organizations that is the major voice calling for changes in how antibiotics are used on farms.

Along with eliminating the overuse of antibiotics, KAW’s major goal has been to improve data collection by federal agencies on both antibiotic-resistant superbugs and on antibiotic use on farm. During the last year, FACT and our KAW allies have spent considerable effort urging federal agencies such as the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), to improve the collection of these data.

After extensive outreach through meetings, presentations, and letters, last year both the USDA and FDA responded to KAW calls for better data. The USDA conducted new surveys of antibiotic use on pig and cattle farms and the FDA for the first time reported species-specific sales data. KAW supported both new efforts. While these data collection efforts are an improvement, a system is still not in place to collect needed data on antibiotic use at the farm. In the coming year FACT will continue working to get this needed data and to push for reductions in the overall use of antibiotics in food animals.

2016 data showed a drop in antibiotic sales for food animals for the first time, indicating that FACT’s hard work is starting to pay off. We will work toward continued reductions when the FDA reports new data later this year.

Fast food antibiotics campaigns getting results
During the last two years, responding to campaigns by FACT and allied organizations, McDonald’s, Subway, and KFC have all either shifted or committed to shifting to serving only chicken raised without the use of medically important antibiotics.

These changes—made by the above restaurants and others—were reflected in the third annual Chain Reaction report released in September 2017, which showed that 14 of the top 25 restaurant chains had made commitments to reduce antibiotic use in their meet supply. Chain Reaction is an annual report created by FACT and allied organizations to rank the top restaurant chains on their antibiotic policies. We are currently working on Chain Reaction IV for release in Fall 2018.

We will continue these efforts until all major fast food companies adopt policies on antibiotic use. While progress has been made on the chicken supply, there has been little progress on pork, beef, and turkey, which we are currently working to address.

Eliminating cancer causing carbadox residues from food
In April 2016, the FDA announced that it wanted to ban the drug carbadox because feeding it to pigs in the food supply led to cancer-causing residues in pork products. The drug maker Phibro has challenged the ban through formal proceedings—a process which may take between five to 20 years. In the meantime, the drug can still be fed to pigs.

FACT has written in support of the FDA and has asked pig companies not to use the drug. So far, the companies have not acted. In March, FACT reached out to the top 10 restaurant chains to ask them to protect their customers by requiring their pork suppliers to stop using the drug. FACT will also continue to pressure pork companies and other companies that sell pork to stop using the drug.

Pork labeling transparency and hormone usage in animals
Many consumers are concerned about the use of artificial hormones in food animals and want food labels to inform them of their use. Hormones are most commonly used in cattle to speed growth or to increase milk production. While the USDA states that it does not allow hormones to be used

In our 2017 fiscal year FACT received 2,370 gifts from 1,583 supporters—ensuring that we may continue our work to improve farm animal welfare and food safety. There are many ways to contribute to FACT’s impact:

Online Contributions
You may visit our website at foodanimalconcernstrust.org/donate and provide a one-time or monthly gift. Online donations are securely processed. We request that credit card donations be at or above $10.00 due to processing fees and our small organizational size.

Phone Contributions
You may set up a one-time or monthly contribution by phoning FACT’s office at 773-525-4952 x. 23 and providing your payment information to Sidney Freitag-Fey, Director of Marketing and Development.

Planned Giving and Bequests
As you plan your philanthropic legacy, please consider including a provision in your will that includes FACT as a beneficiary. This bequest language is suggested:

I bequeath to Food Animal Concerns Trust (FACT), a 501c3 nonprofit located in Chicago, IL, the sum of $__________ and/or (specifically described property).

Donations to FACT, a not-for-profit corporation exempt under Internal Revenue Code Section 501(c)(3), are tax-deductible (EIN: 36-3172605). Please contact us if you have any specific questions regarding including FACT in your planned giving. Our 501(c)(3) determination letter is available for download at foodanimalconcernstrust.org/publications

Matching Gifts
Your employer, or your spouse’s employer, may match your donation to FACT—sometimes even triple the amount that you donate. Please contact your employer’s Human Resources, Community Engagement, or comparable department to determine if your company has a matching gift program. Matching gifts entail a short form that you fill out as the donor and then mail to FACT for our staff to complete and submit—doubling or tripling your generous gift!

Company Giving
Some companies allow employees to submit organizations or causes they personally support to be considered for company-wide gifts, which can include local grants, holiday give-backs, employee funding drives, or other charitable endeavors. Most often the same department that manages Matching Gifts programs also manages these types of company giving. Please consider reaching out to your company to see if there is a company giving program that FACT may be eligible for.

Thank you for partnering with us to ensure that more farm animals are raised humanely.
FACT appreciates the generous support of our donors, without you none of our work detailed on the previous pages would have been possible. Below is a listing of donors who contributed during our 2017 Fiscal Year (July 1, 2016 through June 30, 2017).
