Anne de Carbuccia is a French American environmental artist who lives between Milan and New York. She traveled for years to the most extreme places on earth. Her current project One: One Planet-One Future documents the impact of mankind on the planet.

She studied Anthropology and Art History at Columbia university in New York.

Since 2016 she established the Time Shrine Foundation to raise awareness for human caused threats to the environment and the planet as a whole and inspire personal sustainable lifestyle changes. Her work has been exhibited in museums and public institutions in America and Europe and is part of several private collections.
