Description:

The StFX Economics Society brings together students and faculty within the department by keeping members up to date on events and departmental offerings, hosting various seminars, info sessions, and social events. Members also have the opportunity to gain friendly advice and knowledge from other students within the program, a great help in regards to degree patterns and choosing courses. Apart from meetings and events, the society will complete a clothing order allowing both society members and non-society members to showcase their true econ spirit. We plan on attracting guest-speakers suitable for students with limited economic knowledge so presentations can be understood and appreciated by all members and non-members. Everyone is welcome to join or post items of interest on the Economics Society Facebook page. The Facebook page is a place where members can ask questions and receive information on exciting things happening within the department. If you are interested in participating or just love economics, but can't make it to society night - please message Jamie Forsyth (President) or Dylan Gallant (VP) or contact us at so_economics@stfx.ca.

As of last year our Honours graduates earned a total of $500,000 combined, with the average offer being over $30,000, to pursue a 12-month masters program in Economics. Information on recent graduates, <http://sites.stfx.ca/economics/RecentGrads>, and for additional information on the Economics department and offerings visit the departmental website at <http://sites.stfx.ca/economics/>.
