BOURBON

With the highest level of legal restrictions for American whiskey, bourbon keeps things on the straight and narrow. Bourbon must be produced in the States and have a grain mixture of at least 51% corn, which makes the spirit noticeably sweeter than other whiskeys. Aged in new, charred oak containers and distilled to no more than 160 proof, bourbon must then enter barrels at no more than 125 proof and finally, be bottled at no less than 80 proof. If no other spirits are blended and no coloring is added, it can be called straight bourbon.
