BOURBON

With the highest level of legal restrictions for American whiskey, bourbon keeps things on the straight and narrow. Bourbon must be produced in the States and have a grain mixture of at least 51% corn, which makes the spirit noticeably sweeter than other whiskeys. Aged in new, charred oak containers and distilled to no more than 160 proof, bourbon must then enter barrels at no more than 125 proof and finally, be bottled at no less than 80 proof. If no other spirits are blended and no coloring is added, it can be called straight bourbon.

AMERICAN CRAFT WHISKEY

The wild west of American Whiskies. The laws that constrict distiller creativity in bourbon or single malt scotch are relics of the past for these rebel distillers. Unique grain blends, different aging and blending processes, and wide open variables in terms of barrel selection make each one of these some pioneers of the new American Whiskey landscape.

- BLACK BUTTON APPLE PIE MOONSHINE 40 proof/Rochester, NY $10
Fresh pressed western NY cider, unaged corn whiskey & a little cinnamon.
- ROWHOUSE POITIN WHISKEY 96 proof/Philadelphia, PA $12

Bourbon's little brother, rye whiskey must also be produced in the States and have a grain mixture of at least 51% rye, leaving it with a spicy/fruity flavor.
