

Brasserie de Marsinne

Nicolas Declercq and Tanguy van der Eecken founded the Brasserie de Marsinne in 2013 in Tanguy's family farm in Marsinne, Belgium. The two men met in college, while studying brewing and marketing, and shared the dream of the re-birth of the Marsinne Brewery that was last led in 1866 by a brewer named Leopold.

According to the legend, brewer Leopold invented a unique and original brew that became famous in the region. This legendary beer is what inspired Nicolas and Tanguy to create a new and original style of Belgian Ale, combining the hallmark qualities for which Belgium is so famously known. Fast forward 3 years, Brasserie de Marsinne has garnered tremendous respect and numerous accolades for Leopold 7, their most unique double ale.

Leopold 7

Three grains and three hops follow a long maturation process and a second fermentation in the bottle to produce a full bodied and creamy, slightly amber colored, double ale.

The traditional "Belgian White" spices are also used in the process, resulting in a refined bouquet of floral and citrus notes. The entry is rich and smooth, while a light carbonation and slightly bitter finish make for a seductive yet robust, drinking experience.
