Links Academy Receives NEASC Accreditation

Greenwich Education Group (GEG) is proud to announce that Links Academy has received accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC). This signifies that Links Academy meets the highest institutional standards in the field of education and complies with all federal and state laws and regulations.

"We are very proud of receiving accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges," stated Andrea MacGilpin, Links Academy's Head of School. "It is evidence of the quality of our programs, the thoroughness of our approach, the vitality of our mission, and the high performance standards achieved by our incredibly dedicated faculty and staff."

GEG's Founder and Executive Director, Victoria C. Newman, underscored the importance of this milestone for the school: "Links Academy breaks the mold of traditional institutions by putting students first and designing completely individualized educational experiences for them. NEASC was inspired by its innovative approach to education as well as its instructional excellence, supportive environment, and impressive track record."

Links Academy is an accredited, individualized private school for students in grades 6-12. Located in Stamford, Links' foundation is its flexible, student-centered, relationship-based, one-to-one model. This unique school prides itself on crafting the optimal learning experience for each student by integrating personalized academic instruction and seamless support services to create a custom program within a vibrant student community. Typical reasons for attending Links include medical concerns (such as Lyme disease or concussions), a transition between schools, school anxiety and avoidance, or the need for a flexible schedule due to athletic or professional commitments.

One-to-one academic courses with an expert teaching faculty allow for an in-depth, fluid exploration of the curriculum and the opportunity to address gaps in knowledge so that each student can embark on a journey of "Learning Without Limits". Links Academy also offers distance learning, credit recovery, and a summer program for academic acceleration and remediation. A division of Greenwich Education Group, Links recently relocated to an expanded space at 78 Harvard Avenue due to increased enrollment.
