

OPENING RECEPTION | GLAUKO ALIZARA & LUCAS WAYRA

Opening reception Saturday June 27th from 6 to 10pm

Dynamism Redux is the first major U.S. exhibition by London-based artists Glauko Alizara and Lucas Wayra. This collaborative exhibition incorporates painting, sculpture and installative processes in order to explore shifting color tensions in space and how those aspects of the built environment affect the viewer. The works contain a dynamic quality, whether by maintaining an element of perpetual motion, having the capacity to be altered in a participatory manner, or having viewers shift their own bodies in space in order to fully experience the work.

After obtaining her degree in photography from the Royal Academy of Art in London in 2007, Alizara (Australian born in 1984) has since worked around the world as a celebrated multimedia artist with a concentration in light and sound technology. Influenced by design, photography, and film, Alizara's practice is rooted in new methods of painting and seeks to identify the ambiguities of present-day optical creation that explore chiaroscuro in place of pigment. By directing the flow of natural light, embedding artificial light within objects or architecture, or playing with light through the use of transparent, translucent or reflective materials, Alizara explores color harmonies in space.

Wayra (London, England, born in 1985) was trained as an architect at Glasgow School of Art and Architecture in Scotland, obtaining his degree in 2009. His work focuses on contemporary issues in urban space by analyzing the changeable and active nature of our built environment. Video, sculpture, installation, and performance converge to address architecture through three broad themes: intervention, mobility, and participation. In doing so, Wayra takes architecture beyond its obvious function as shelter and design to examine its social, psychological, and cultural resonance in our lives.
