Adat HaTikvah Mission Statement:
We want to lead people to return to the God of our fathers by becoming fully devoted followers of Yeshua.

Our Core Values are to:
1. Return to the God of our Fathers
2. Become fully devoted followers of Yeshua.
3. Reflect the Jewishness of Yeshua.
4. Invite all people into the family of God.
5. Demonstrate God’s love through our gifts, generous resources, and service.
The Four C’s Of Adat Teams

The 4-C’s are Calling, Character, Competency, Chemistry/Culture.¹

Calling: This is critical to us because God has an interest in this decision. Yeshua told us to “Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness…” God told Jeremiah, “I know the plans I have for you…” So we remind ourselves to seek God for His purposes. It is quite possible that the person would be a great match in every other way, but that God is directing them towards something else in your organization or in the world.

Character: Character is critical to an influential position. Here are some key words that help to describe character; Team player, teachable, generous, serves regularly, submitted to leadership, maturing Believer, and a Positive Example in Life.

Competency: Simply this is the ability to do something successfully or efficiently. We recruit and appoint positions based on advanced competencies that are determined by leadership and then required for that role.

Chemistry: This is the arena where we determine if the person in question is going to be a good fit in your culture as well as with you as their leader. High character; highly competent people are not always able to accomplish their goal.

Culture: This is corporate chemistry. Does the candidate have an understanding of the unique role of Messianic Judaism and a clear articulation of how they fit into the goals and vision of Adat HaTikvah?

At Adat take these criteria very seriously. If even just one of them doesn’t seem to be lining up, we slow everything down and re-evaluate. Better to struggle through a leadership void for a season of time than to get the wrong person on the bus and find out 6 or 9 months down the line that they aren’t going to work out.

The Ideal Team Player

By Patrick Lencioni

HUMBLE

The first and most important virtue of an ideal team player is humility. A humble employee is someone who is more concerned with the success of the team than with getting credit for his or her contributions. People who lack humility in a significant way, the ones who demand a disproportionate amount of attention, are dangerous for a team. Having said that, humble team players are not afraid to honestly acknowledge the skills and talents that they bring to the team, though never in a proud or boastful way.

HUNGRY

The next virtue of an ideal team player is hunger; the desire to work hard and do whatever is necessary to help the team succeed. Hungry employees almost never have to be pushed by a manager to work harder because they are self-motivated and diligent. They volunteer to fill gaps, take on more responsibilities and are eagerly looking around corners for new ways to contribute to the team.

SMART

The final virtue of a team player is not about being intelligent, but rather about being wise in how to deal with people. Smart employees understand the nuances of team dynamics, and know how their words and actions impact others. Their good judgment and intuition help them deal with others in the most effective way.

As simple as these three concepts may be, the key to all this is the unique combination of all three virtues, which make a person an ideal team player. Unfortunately, when even one of these attributes is lacking in a significant way, challenges can arise.

At Adat HaTikvah this is an important and vital virtue, we will strive to create competent and healthy teams to accomplish all of our goals and visions. Therefore this concept is fundamental to the future accomplishment of our mission and purpose.

LEADER (DOMINANCE)
Leaders typically like to have a variety of projects, becoming bored with repetitive work. They know what they want, will take action to achieve it and like immediate results. They are risk-takers, change-makers, self-determined, competitive, problem-solvers, good decision-makers and entrepreneurs. Leaders appear very direct, quick, indifferent, aloof and not emotional.

EXPRESSOR (INFLUENCE)
Expressors are typically drawn to group activities. They verbalize well and are sometimes loud and talkative. They are gregarious, aggressive, enthusiastic, entertaining, persuasive, optimistic, fun loving, generous, helpful, dreamers, intuitive, and trusting.

ANALYST (CONSCIENTIOUS)
Analysts have high standards and lack trust. They collect data, follow rules and recognize authority, making them good company people. They are hard workers, detailed, calculating, factual, accurate, precise, straightforward, questioning, non-aggressive, good organizers and diplomatic.

DEPENDABLE (STEADINESS)
Dependables prefer the status quo, typically staying in one place and focusing on tasks. They have close relationships and do not like risk-taking. Dependables are patient, calm, polite, warm, loyal, family-oriented, traditional, kind, good listeners, team people, neat, organized, good performers and good with details.

Teachers/Ma’dricim

A Ma’dric is really best translated as a guide. Our goal is to be a help and guide the children of Adat as they encounter God’s Word and prayerfully God himself. Undeniably teaching must be a part of this but we hope to work as a partner with the LORD as He is working in their lives.

6. Purpose
   1. Connection- To provide an opportunity for leaders to connect with the kids and get them talking-preferably about the lesson or what God is doing in their hearts.
   2. Application- To make sure that main point of what God is saying is understood and how it applies to their lives
      1. Did they get it?

      3. How do they live this out in everyday life?
7. Practical Tips
1. Make sure kids speak one at a time and listen while others are talking
2. We should lead the discussion, allowing for and encouraging the children’s input. Remember we are facilitators and NOT dominators
3. If you notice a child who is quiet ask them a question directly and don’t let one child dominate the small group
4. Never belittle or make fun of a child for his/her answer. Always be encouraging and if possible, find something positive (NOT sarcastic) to communicate about what they said.
5. Use reflective listening to restate/reframe and affirm what has been answered. Use positive feedback where possible. “Good answer, great point.”

For Mandated Reporters ONLY

Who are mandated reporters?
Members of the general public are encouraged to report suspected child abuse and neglect. However, state law mandates that workers in certain professions must make reports if they have reasonable cause to suspect abuse or neglect. Mandated reporters include:

• Medical Personnel: Physicians, psychiatrists, surgeons, residents, interns, dentists, dentist hygienists, medical examiners, pathologists, coroners, Christian Science practitioners, chiropractors, podiatrists, registered and licensed practical nurses, emergency medical technicians, substance abuse treatment personnel, foster parents, homemakers, recreational program or facility personnel, registered psychologists and assistants working under the direct supervision of a psychologist, funeral home directors and employees, and members of the clergy.

Mandated reporters who make good faith reports have the same immunity from liability under the law as non-mandated reporters. However, a mandated reporter's willful failure to report suspected instances of child abuse or neglect to DCFS constitutes a Class A misdemeanor. A second or subsequent violation is a Class 4 felony.

Does reporting my suspicions to a superior satisfy my mandated reporter requirement?
No. While you may also inform your superiors (such as the school principal or an administrator) of your suspicions, this does not satisfy your mandated reporter requirement that you call the hotline.

How can I learn more?
The DCFS publication A Manual for Mandated Reporters is available in English and Spanish, and can be downloaded from the department's website (www.DCFS.illinois.gov). Additional training opportunities will also be advertised on the DCFS website.
Care Enough to Call

Protecting children is a responsibility we all share. It is important for every person to take child abuse and neglect seriously, to be able to recognize when it happens, and to know what to do next. Care enough to call the state's child abuse hotline:

1-800-25-ABUSE
(1-800-252-2873)
1-800-358-5117 (TTY)

What are child abuse and neglect?
This year hotline workers will handle approximately 70,000 reports of child abuse and neglect. Child abuse is the mistreatment of a child under the age of 18 by a parent, caretaker, someone living in their home or someone who works with or around children. The mistreatment must cause injury or harm, or put the child at risk of injury or harm. Child abuse can be physical (such as bruises, burns or broken bones), sexual (such as fondling, penetration, exposure to pornography, or incest) or emotional.

Neglect happens when a parent or responsible caretaker fails to provide adequate supervision, food, clothing, shelter, medical care or other basics for a child.

When should I call the hotline?
You should call the child abuse hotline whenever you believe that a person who is caring for the child, who lives with the child, or who works with or around children may have caused injury or harm or put the child at risk of injury or harm as defined in the Illinois Abused and Neglected Child Reporting Act.

Some examples of situations in which you should call the hotline include:
- If you see someone beating a child or hitting a child with an object.
- If you see marks on a child's body that do not appear to have been caused by accident.
- If a child appears to be undernourished, is dressed inappropriately for the weather, or is young and has been left alone.

Use your own judgment and call the hotline whenever you think a child may have been abused or neglected.

What should I NOT call the hotline?
Some situations do not require calling the hotline. Use good judgment. Call only when you think a child may have been or will be injured or harmed as described above. Some examples of what you should not call the hotline include:
- Situations where a child is causing a problem that concerns you, but the problem is not related to abuse or neglect. In some cases you may wish to call law enforcement or talk to the child's parents or relatives.
- Domestic situations where family stress is evident, but the child has not been abused or put at risk of abuse. Community service agencies are often available to help.

What should I report?
Hotline staff are workers with special training in determining what constitutes child abuse and neglect under Illinois law. Details are important. Ideally, you should be able to tell the hotline worker:
- The child's name, address and age.
- The nature of the suspected abuse or neglect, including when and where it occurred.
- The names of suspected perpetrators, if known, and their relationship to the child (parent, teacher, etc.).
- Any other information you think may help.

What happens when I call the hotline?
When you call, a hotline worker will listen to what you wish to report. The worker will then ask questions to help gather enough information to determine whether to take a formal report. If there is not enough information to make a report, the worker will tell you so and answer any questions you may have.

If a formal report is taken, an Investigation Specialist will begin the investigation within 24 hours—much sooner if the child is considered in immediate risk of harm.

How am I protected?
People who report alleged child abuse or neglect in good faith cannot be held liable for damages under criminal or civil law. In addition, their names are not given to the person they name as the abuser or anyone else unless ordered by a hearing officer or judge. Members of the general public may make reports to the hotline without giving their names.

Should I call the police?
Always call the child abuse hotline to report suspected child abuse or neglect. However, you should also consider calling the police—especially in emergencies, when the child has been injured, or when the child is in immediate danger of being harmed.

How else can I help?
The Illinois income tax check-off program enables anyone to donate to the Child Abuse Prevention Fund when they file their state income tax returns. The money is used to support community-based family education programs designed to help parents improve their parenting skills and to help them learn how to cope with family life.

You can also be an important part of improving foster care in your community. There are many ways you can make a difference, including becoming a foster parent, mentoring a foster child, volunteering at your local foster care agency, and helping to change the way people think about foster care. For more information, call 888-4 R KIDS 2 (toll free) or visit www.fosterkidsareourkids.org.
