Greenwich Education Group Schools Announces Restructuring

Greenwich, CT – May 26, 2017 - Since 2003, Greenwich Education Group's four NEASC accredited day schools have been providing students with specialized support programs needed to achieve academic success. Each student is met with personal attention, individualized instruction and every resource imaginable in order to help them reach their full academic potential. While the public need for the schools has increased annually, GEG announces today their decision to close the Stamford campus of the Beacon School in an effort to consolidate their academic programs, resources, and focus. GEG's other schools, The Pinnacle School, Spire School, and Links Academy, will continue to serve their student populations, with Links absorbing many of the existing Beacon students. Additional outplacement services will be offered pro bono by the Day & Boarding Advisory Services division at GEG.

In response to a growing demand in our community, Vicky Newman, Founder and Executive Director of Greenwich Education Group, created the four schools to fill a need not met by schools in the Fairchester area. Links Academy provides customized, one-on-one instruction and support for transitional, short-term, or long-term placements in grades 6-12. The Pinnacle School is a special education school serving students in grades 2-12 with a focus on academic, social, and executive function skills. Integrating a health and wellness curriculum, the Spire School helps students in grades 6-12 realize their scholastic potential and overcome emotional difficulties. The Beacon School offered challenge, enrichment, and support for intellectually curious students in grades 3-12.

Newman emphasizes that, "Links Academy, Pinnacle and Spire break the mold of traditional institutions by putting students first and designing completely individualized educational experiences for them. We are committed to our innovative approach to education as well as our instructional excellence and supportive environment. Shifting our resources to serving the thriving programs that Links, Pinnacle, and Spire provide to our community will enable us to maximize the effectiveness of these unique programs."

In addition to the accredited schools, Greenwich Education Group's lines of business include academic services, tutoring, standardized test preparation, educational consulting, and college counseling; sessions take place in our centers, in home, and online. Specialized services are delivered at our award-winning Collaborative Center for Learning and Development, which provides a range of programs for all ages.

Greenwich Education Group's curricula and teaching methods are as varied as the students they serve. Its philosophy of individualized education targets each student's strengths and needs. Learn more about their programs at www.greenwichedgroup.com.
