PORTFOLIO

<https://ejagger.myportfolio.com/>

'The best thing about being in a creative environment is the opportunity to learn something new every day.'

Meeting clients, opening windows into fresh possibilities. Learning about new environments, understanding a client's business purpose and motivation, translating their design problem into a creative solution and becoming part of their path to success.

Experience

2015 - Present Running Jaggerdesign, a graphic design service from my home studio in the New Forest. Providing various local businesses with websites, setting up social media and producing promotional material. Meeting inspirational people locally, a great opportunity to develop my skills at a steady pace.

2005-2017 Picture research for The Sunday Express. This included researching various beautiful destinations, trawling stock libraries looking for the best images and contacting travel company P.R's for images of hotels and locations featured in the travel section of the newspaper. Gathering film stills for the film reviews. Keeping a diary of events for the picture editor and arranging press accreditation for photographers. Providing image management, using Photoshop to check each image was in the correct format, creating a custom indexing system ensuring each image was traceable back to its original source, captioned correctly and credited to the photographer, to ensure that payment for the image was correctly facilitated. 1998-2005 Freelance picture research, London. Working mainly for the Daily Express, but also OK!, The Guardian, S2 Magazine (Evening Standard) S Magazine (Sunday Express) Hello!, It's Bliss!, Fortean Times, Bizarre. Responsibilities would include commissioning photo shoots, make-up artists, photographers and negotiating fees for photo sets from press agencies. A fast paced and exciting job especially for the news desks, watching world news unfurl and feeling like your fingers are on the pulse of current affairs.

Not everyone knows... I can speak a bit of Setswana. I lived in Botswana for 2 years between 1999 and 2002, travelling across, through and around southern Africa, accompanying my husband who taught at a small rural school near Mahalapye.

I love yoga, healthy eating, cycling, long walks, camping holidays, connecting with nature with the kids.

Movies (Star Wars), Books, (Neil Gaiman) Music (live).
