Stage an evening with Stagebridge's Staged Reading Showcase at Piedmont Center for the Arts!

The plays may be staged, but the work comes alive as Stagebridge's Staged Reading class presents an evening of delightful one-acts by David Ives, master of language and wordplay, on Friday, June 8 at 7:00pm at Piedmont Center for the Arts.

Directed by instructor Trish Tillman, the showcase will consist of seven to eight short pieces. As Tillman describes it, "...working on these plays has given us the challenge of making language come alive in absurd situations through infusing them with our own personalities and talents."

The evening promises to delight, as Ives is known for his enchanting, intelligent and funny series of one act plays. Beneath the comedy, universal truths also lurk about us: how we act, how we dream and aspire, and how we thwart ourselves.

This event takes place at Piedmont Center for the Arts, 801 Magnolia Ave, Piedmont, 94611.
Admission is $10; advance tickets are recommended, available at: https://www.brownpapertickets.com/event/3438324
