

The Jones Residence started out as a major remodel. The existing house was in such poor condition, we determined it was not worth saving. Hence, we designed a new 4,000 SF home to replace the old one. One enters the house from the street above. Close attention was paid to the roof forms and the look of the house from above. We positioned the house on the site so that it preserved the old oak trees and the existing view to the valley. The back of the house has large expanses of glass to let in light and be open to the view. The many decks and terraces at the front and rear provide expanded areas for entertaining. The main living areas are set up for entertaining large groups of people.
