Specific Recommendations for Enhancing Lactation Space Accessibility

Location Considerations:
- An ADA accessible space (ideally, 7x7 ft for a single user)
- Sufficient space for all pumping needs based on rate of maternity leave (or ~1 room/100 people)
- Consider multi-user space at conferences and in buildings with a large capacity/demand
- At least 1 lactation space accessible within 5-7 minutes from users’ primary work area.
- A directory of spaces, signage, and a reservation system
- A door lock or restricted access and indicator when room is “in use” on the door.
- Barriers to use minimized (e.g. users shouldn’t need to request a key for every use)
- Consideration of access need for all workplace occupants, including all staff levels and visitors
- Good temperature control and internal light control.
- Sound privacy
- Flooring materials that can easily be cleaned

Mechanicals and Appliances:
- Outlets near chairs where users will be sitting, preferably at counter height
- A flat surface for the breast pump and bottle preparation (ideally 24-inch-deep counter)
- Multi-user, hospital grade pumps should be considered in certain environments
- A refrigerator that can be accessed at any time for milk storage (even when room is in use)
- A sink for washing pump parts
- Storage space for pump/clothing between sessions that can be accessed at any time
- A microwave for sanitizing pump parts

Furniture and Amenities:
- Comfortable, sanitizable chairs
- Trash can
- Cleaning supplies for spills
- Hand sanitizer
- Artwork/design features that make the room less sterile and more welcoming
- A mirror to adjust clothing after pumping
- Coat rack or hooks

Additional information on designing ideal lactation spaces can be found below, along with general considerations for hosting child-friendly conferences.

Our recommendations:
- Advocate for the above considerations at your institution
- Share this sheet with appropriate decision-makers
- If you are in a position to provide these accommodations, consider the above recommendations and help normalize the need for lactation spaces whenever possible
