

To whom it may concern,

Sreyan Ghosh worked as an UX intern during the months of April and May 2015 at Microsoft India Pvt Ltd. Sreyan was among the privileged few from top business and design schools to be invited for a startup innovation focused internship program. Sreyan specifically worked on a consumer focused mobile application for the Dynamics CRM product team.

Sreyan started off well and understood the scenarios and overall goals of the product concept that he was asked to work in. He worked along with me and other product, developer interns and completed all his tasks on time with high quality. I found Sreyan to be a bright and personable individual, highly self-motivated and capable of achieving any goals that he or the organization might set. Sreyan's deliverables have been found very useful for the success of the project.

As part of the internship, Sreyan had to deal with a lot of ambiguity as he was asked to design an application based on an entirely new UX framework that was coming up in Windows 10. I found Sreyan receptive to suggestions and feedback and adjusting his deliverables appropriately. Sreyan often volunteered to present the core concepts during review meetings, his colleagues also reached out to him due to his excellent grasp of concepts and good communication skills. I am positive that any organization will benefit immensely from employing a talented individual like Sreyan.

Sincerely,
