On January 21st, 5 million people came together on all seven continents to march for the dignity and human rights of women. The largest mass demonstration in U.S. history and possibly in the world, the Women's March on Washington reinforced the message that women are part of every community and therefore every social issue is a women's issue.

The Women’s March is writing to ask for your support for our next initiative, A Day Without A Woman. Occurring on International Women’s Day, March 8th, A Day Without A Woman will highlight the enormous value that women of all backgrounds add to our socio-economic system, while receiving lower wages and experiencing greater inequities, vulnerability to discrimination, sexual harassment, and job insecurity. In the spirit of the principles that guided us to march, the Women's March stands in solidarity with feminists of color and grassroots groups to affirm the human rights of women of International Women’s Day and stand against racism, xenophobia, sexism, homophobia, Islamophobia, ableism, ageism and all forms of discrimination.

We ask you to join us and harness your business’ voice in standing up for women by giving your female employees a paid day off on March 8 so that they may join their sisters in solidarity.

We recognize that the ability to leave work for one day in the middle of the week can be a challenge. We honor that some women may worry about the stability of their employment after March 8. We understand this will require planning, and we hope you will stand with us and all women on this day.

Please email tabitha@womensmarch.com, reshma@womensmarch.com or mariam@womensmarch.com if your organization is interested in participating or expressing your support for A Day Without A Woman on March 8, 2017. It will be a historic day and we hope to count on your business to stand with the women who power our economy and our society.

Sincerely,

The Organizers of the Women’s March on Washington
