December 22, 2021

Dear Buffalo Collegiate Families,

We hope this finds you and your family well as we prepare for our holiday break. While this world continues to throw us our share of challenges, we remain focused on the joys that we experience with our team and your children daily. In 2022, we will continue our drive to be a school of growth and commitment to excellence.

Like you, we have been made aware that Buffalo Public is considering a shift back to full remote in January. As we have demonstrated in the past, Buffalo Collegiate believes that full in-person learning is the best way to educate the whole child.

As such, Buffalo Collegiate will not be sending home Chromebooks with students over break because we intend on returning to full in-person learning on Wednesday, January 5, 2022. As we have demonstrated in the past, we have the capacity to nimbly shift to remote learning if and when that is deemed necessary for our Buffalo Collegiate community. After a slight delay, we are 1:1 for students and Chromebooks. If COVID numbers lead to a shift to remote learning, we will arrange for family pick-up and drop-off, just as we have in the past.

If your student is currently enrolled in our remote option, nothing will change for them after the break. They will have the option to rejoin in person instruction after January 21, 2022, or remain in remote learning for another quarter.

With deep admiration and gratitude,
