Letter from the MEEA Executive Secretary

Two thousand and seven has so far been an action-packed year for the MEEA. The 27th Annual Conference in January in Chicago was a great success. We experimented with pre-ASSA sessions in Chicago and organized two, well-attended sessions on January 4, one day prior to the opening of the ASSA meetings. We held these sessions at the Loyola University of Chicago, thanks to an invitation extended and logistic support provided by Mine Cinar, where we received a warm welcome from Dean Abol Jalilvand of the School of Business Administration. These two sessions complemented six sessions we held in the ASSA meeting slots provided by the American Economic Association. We also had an excellent dinner-lecture event at Reza’s Restaurant, where we had a chance to listen to and get inspired by Jeff Nugent’s presentation entitled “Explaining Growth in the Middle East and North Africa” which was also a sneak preview of the recently published volume by the same title he and Hashem Pesaran edited. In addition, the dinner gave us a chance to thank Jeff once again for his service on the Board of MEEA and his leadership as our President between 2004 and 2007.

As many of you are aware, we have recently finalized the program for the 28th Annual Conference that will begin on January 3, 2008, one day before the ASSA meetings, in New Orleans. We have received many abstracts and had a difficult time choosing (Continued on page 2) the most promising papers to be presented at the meetings. At the end, we have accepted 27 papers for presentation in 5 pre-ASSA sessions that we will have at the University of New Orleans on January 3. I am thankful to Kabir Hassan for helping us get rooms for these sessions. The rest of the accepted papers will be presented in 4 regular sessions plus a poster session on the first and second days of the ASSA meetings. One of these sessions has been proposed by Nader Kabbani and includes four very interesting papers on youth employment issues in the MENA region. I am looking forward to seeing all authors of accepted papers in New Orleans in January.

We had our 6th International Meetings, March 14-16, 2007 at Zayed University in Dubai where almost a hundred papers were presented and preparations are well under way for the 7th International Meetings to be held at Eastern Mediterranean University in North Cyprus in late May next year. I urge you all to watch for further information about the meetings on the MEEA web page and send in your proposals for papers to be presented at this conference which, I think, promises to be a great one.

Finally, I would like to share with you the good news about our associated journals. Selected papers from the 27th Annual Conference in Chicago and the 5th International Conference held in Sousse, Tunisia last year were already published in volume 9 of our on-line journal, Topics in Middle Eastern and North African Economies. Volume 9 appeared ahead of time and is already accessible at http://www.luc.edu/orgs/meea/volume9/meea9.html. The Review of Middle East Economics and Finance (RMEEF), the other associated journal whose publication was terminated by Taylor and Francis after volume 3 appeared in 2005, is coming back. Thanks to efforts of Wassim Shahin, the founding editor, the Berkeley Electronic Press agreed to take over the publication of RMEEF. The journal now has a new editorial team led by Ghassan Dibeh of Lebanese American University and needs all the support that the MEEA members can provide as submitters of high quality papers, conscientious and prompt reviewers and, of course, attentive readers who would give the editorial team necessary feedback to continuously improve the journal’s quality. I for one am looking forward to volume 4 to be published by the new publisher and invite all members to contribute to RMEEF in all capacities.

I hope to see you in New Orleans and North Cyprus in 2008.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON GLOBALIZATION IN THE ARAB WORLD
AMMAN, JORDAN FEB. 3-4, 2008
Profound changes have been taking place over the past two decades in the global business, economic and political environments. Such changes have swept through almost every region and country in the world. However, the impact of these developments and the main advances in the Arab World remain largely unexplored and underresearched. The conference invites innovative and high-quality theoretical, empirical and policy contributions from academics and policy-makers from both the developed and developing world which focus on one of the three tracks of the conference: the impact of globalization and economic reforms, financial aid and democratization in the Middle East, North Africa and neighboring regions.

Authors are invited to submit an extended abstract of 1,000 words by 15 September 2007. The abstract should include a brief background to the topic, aims and objectives of the work and how it contributes to the relevant conference track.

Abstracts should be submitted electronically by e-mail to glob-conf@mmu.ac.uk. See the details of the call for papers at http://www.business.mmu.ac.uk/cibi/globconf/overview.php.

BETWEEN EMPIRE AND NATION STATES:
CONTINUITY AND CHANGE IN THE ECONOMIES
OF THE MIDDLE EAST AND NORTH AFRICA IN THE 20TH CENTURY.

Call for papers for a session proposed by Jacob Metzzer, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, mmetzer@mscc.huji.ac.il, and Sevket Pamuk, Bogazici University, Istanbul, pamulks@ttнет.net.tr, to the XVth World Economic History Congress, Utrecht, The Netherlands, August 3 to 7, 2009 www.wehe2009.org

The Middle East passed through two great transitions in the 20th Century. The first one was the demise of the Ottoman Empire and its replacement by European rule over a good part of the region in the aftermath of WWI, and the second was the post WWII transition from foreign (colonial) rule to statehood. These two transitions should provide us with useful anchors for comparatively examining dimensions of continuity and change in the economies of the greater Middle East (including North Africa, parts of which were occupied by European states before WWI) over the period concerned.
