Distinctiveness Reconsidered: Religiosity, Structural Location, and Understandings of Racial Inequality

Jacqui Frost, University of Minnesota
Penny Edgell, University of Minnesota

Accepted and In Press, Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion

The authors appreciate the generous support for data collection and research assistance given by the National Science Foundation (grant #s 1258926 and 1258933) and the Edelstein Family Foundation. The data used for this paper will be publicly available through the ICPSR database sometime in 2015.
Figure 5: The Effects of Being Black on Religious Orthodoxy

Lack of Effort Explanation, Full Sample

Affirmative Action Solution, Full Sample