Productive conversations between patients and their families, their caregivers and their health professionals are the foundation of effective advance care planning and high quality end of life care. The 6th International Society of Advance Care Planning and End of Life Care Conference (ACPEL 2017) will focus on identifying barriers and facilitators to effective, ongoing conversations; evaluating the quality of programs and their constituent elements; and examining the ethical, economic and social implications of advance care planning legislation, policies and procedures.

Join participants from around the world in the pristine setting of Banff, Canada to delve into current research and topics.
