After extensive research, Marietta Community Foundation created the COVID-19 Community Plan, to make sure each citizen had access to resources they need during the stay-at-home regulations.

The strategic plan aimed to benefit different demographics of our population: the elderly, those dependent on local food pantries, and children.

PHASE ONE

According to our research, regulations initially effected two demographics the most, students and seniors. While many groups, including local service groups, rightfully focused their efforts to assist our youngest generations, the Foundation focused their “phase one” efforts to benefit our oldest generations.

By partnering with a donor, the Foundation provided a $12,000 emergency grant, $7,000 coming from their Community Impact Fund, to help with transportation and daily meals for seniors for O’Neill Senior Center and Washington-Morgan Community Action.

PHASE TWO

To prevent local food insecurity, the Foundation granted $10,000 to be used to stock each food pantry across Washington County.

Warren’s I.G.A. supplied the orders at a highly-discounted rate and Washington County Harvest of Hope used their vehicle to transport the food to all local pantries.

Due to the age range of many Harvest Of Hope volunteers, the Foundation’s staff have taken part in several deliveries throughout the past two months.

PHASE THREE

Marietta Community Foundation, Marietta Noon Rotary Club, Marietta Morning Rotary Club, and Marietta Rotary Foundation, awarded $12,000 to be used by three local organizations that serve Washington County’s children.

The Boys & Girls Club of Washington County, GoPacks, and the Ely Chapman Educational Foundation received $4,000 each to be used to provide meals and other services to local children.
SISTERS HEALTH FOUNDATION

Sisters Health Foundation (SHF) partnered to help meet the needs of nonprofits working on the frontlines amid the COVID-19 pandemic by giving a $25,000 matching donation to the Foundation’s COVID-19 Community Response Fund.

The donation was immediately put to good use. Due to state and federal regulations placed on senior centers across the United States, Washington-Morgan Community Action increased their meal delivery service to the elderly by taking on clients from O’Neill Senior Center.

In addition to the funds previously granted to Community Action in Phase One of the COVID-19 Community Plan, $10,000 was allocated to the organization to help offset food and transportation costs associated with the influx of new clients from the Senior Center.

BERNARD MCDONOUGH FOUNDATION

Together, Marietta Community Foundation, The Bernard McDonough Foundation, Dale & Courtney Knight, and Marietta College donated approximately $40,000 to local food pantries throughout Washington County to assist citizens facing hunger.

Local pantries continue to see a rise in need throughout their respective service areas. This grant will help keep these pantries well-stocked in the coming months.

SOLVAY SPECIALTY POLYMERS

Together, nonprofit organizations and for-profit businesses make up the economic ecosystem of our community, and when they team up, incredible opportunities can present themselves.

Through a corporate giving program, Solvay’s employees collectively gave $4,800 from their own paychecks, which was then matched by the corporation, and given to the Foundation’s COVID-19 Community Response Fund.
