Fellowship Opportunities for Iraqi Scholars to Conduct Research in Iraq

The Academic Research Institute in Iraq (TARII) invites proposals from Iraqi scholars for feasible short-term research in Iraq.

TARII is a consortium of American universities, museums, and other scholarly institutions dedicated to furthering research in and on Iraq and to fostering mutual understanding and respect between American and Iraqi peoples.

Funding for this program is provided by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the U.S. Department of State through a grant from the Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC).

Proposals for TARII’s Iraq Fellowship program are invited from post-doctoral and advanced pre-doctoral researchers for fellowships to conduct research related to Iraq in any field of the humanities or social sciences. Awards of up to $2,500 will be given, with multiple fellowships given each year. Joint Iraq-US proposals will also be accepted.

Applications must be received by 3 June 2022.

Awards will be announced in July, for projects that should begin in or after August 2022.

For further information on how to apply and to see examples of past US and Iraq fellowship projects, please see our website at http://tarii.org/fellowships