Four stages will feature Chicago's most talented performers

CHICAGO, IL – Come play with us at “The Fun House”, a fundraiser to sustain Stage 773 – a not-for-profit company supporting Chicago’s vibrant arts and cultural community. The action-packed evening will take place on Sunday, September 29 from 6:30-9:30 at Stage 773, located at 1225 W. Belmont. All proceeds from the event will directly benefit Stage 773.

"This event is quite an amazing experience!" said Brian Posen, Creative Director at Stage 773. "All four of our theaters and our lobby will be filled with constant entertainment- From dueling tap dancers, to string quartets and Jazz Bands, to caricature artists, fortune tellers and acrobats! You will find every type of performance you can think of. Definitely a night you will remember."

The evening's events will include live performances on all four stages by some of Chicago's best and most diverse talent, silent and live auctions, a 50/50 raffle and fabulous food and cocktails.

Over 250 guests will bid on over 100 exciting auction items, including a backstage meet and greet with the heavy metal band Poison, a private performance from one of Stage 773's hilarious improv groups, and packages that include a hot air balloon ride, pole dancing lessons and tickets to a Chicago Cubs baseball game.

As part of the exciting night, Stage 773 will be revealing a newly renovated black box theater. The theater will be refurbished with beautiful seats direct from historic Radio City Music Hall. These seats, as well as others in the building, are available for the "Buy A Seat" campaign, where patrons can see their name on a plaque on a seat for a $200 donation to Stage 773.

"This evening will be about celebrating Chicago talent and the staple that Stage 773 has become in the Chicago theater industry," said Laura Michaud, president of the board of directors.
