WE ARE KOSHER

WE FOLLOW THE RULES

The word "Kosher" in Hebrew means "fit," as in, this food is "fit to be eaten." Kashrut — or Jewish dietary law — has a set of rules by which all Kosher foods must abide. The food at Fleishik's follows all of these rules. Because we're Kosher.

KOSHER BASICS

Cows, sheep, deer and goats are animals with "cloven hoofs" and "chew cud," which are two of the primary reasons why these animals are Kosher and can therefore be served here at Fleishik's. Pigs have cloven hoofs, but they do not chew cud. Therefore, pigs are not Kosher. Chickens, turkeys, and ducks are Kosher. Eagles, vultures, and bats, on the other hand, are not Kosher. Sea creatures with fins and scales are Kosher. Shellfish and scavenger fish are not Kosher. Beyond that, the animals need to be raised, harvested/slaughtered, shipped, handled, inspected, prepared, and served in a very specific way. In other words, we pay very close attention to the food that is served here. So enjoy. Also, in observance of Shabbat, we're closed an hour before sunset on Fridays until just after sundown on Saturdays.

VIP IN THE HOUSE

All Kosher establishments have a Mashgiach on site at all times. Our Mashgiach is a Rabbi whose job it is to ensure that our Kosher establishment abides by the Kashrut (Kosher rules, see above). Please talk to our Mashgiach if you have any questions.
